Sonny's Mobil appeals denial to ABCC

By STEPHEN BJORK
 WILMINGTON - As this issue goes to press on October 22, the Town of Wilmington will be before the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) defending the Board of Selectmen's denial of a request to transfer a liquor license.

In July of this year the Board voted to deny a transfer of a liquor license from the now-defunct B&B Liquor Station, formerly located at 433B Main Street, to Sonny's Mobil On The Run, located at 316 Lowell Street. Selectmen cited traffic, lack of available parking, proximity to a "dangerous" intersection, accessibility of alcohol to minors, and the expressed views of local residents.

Sonny's is located at the corner of West Street and Lowell Street, just yards from Interstate 93.

Derek Santini, who is the President of the Santini Family, Inc., which owns Sonny's, appealed the decision to the ABCC alleging that Board members were influenced by their engagement in business activities with other liquor license holders.

"It is the Applicant's position based upon facts presented at the Hearing and subsequent evidence developed from an investigation by the applicant that the Selectmen's vote was arbitrary, capricious and self serving," Santini's attorney, Thomas Orlandi, wrote in his appeal to the ABCC. He also wrote that, "The factors listed by the Board of Selectmen [as cause for denial of the transfer] are subterfuge in an attempt to give legitimacy to their position."

Orlandi subpoenaed Selectmen Raymond Lepore, Michael Newhouse, and Michael McCoy, to testify before the ABCC.

Santini alleges that Lepore's position was influenced by his having installed a large septic system for Lucci's Supermarket, which holds a

Local Aid not on the chopping block...yet

State fiscal crisis trickling down

By JAYNE W. MILLER

TEWKSBURY / WILMINGTON - Declining enrollment in Tewksbury and Wilmington and a state budget blown apart by the financial crisis gripping Wall Street and credit markets makes for an uneasy determination about local aid. The Patrick Administration has stated that despite more than $1 billion in cuts, it will not reduce state aid to cities and towns. Local officials, however, aren't banking on it.

Last week Governor Deval Patrick and Lieutenant Governor Timothy Murray met with municipal leaders to discuss the current fiscal crisis and its impacts on Massachusetts. The Department of Revenue announced a $223 million revenue shortfall for the first quarter of Fiscal Year 09 and estimates a $1.4 billion budget deficit. Blaming a "softening local economy," Patrick plans major spending cuts and implementing cost-savings reforms to the tune of $1 billion - mostly from the Executive Branch.

The deficit will likely impact most residents and result in layoffs statewide, said the administration in a press statement. The Governor is calling for "shared responsibility" and using a "careful approach" to cuts, which will protect education, public safety, and programs for veterans, the homeless, disabled, and domestic violence.

Areas the Governor plans to trim include consolidating agencies, dismantling the Turnpike Authority, pension reform, and containing health care costs. The last two items in particular are part of Tewksbury's Financial Plan Task Force list of recommendations, issued last January, as areas the town can lobby state officials for reform.

"Local aid is a priority and would only be considered [to cut] as a last resort," a Patrick Administration official told the Crier Tuesday.

With the shaky circumstances of state coffers, and the difficulties the State Treasurer had securing bonds to meet local aid payments this quarter, raiding the sacred cow of Chapter 70 education funding may become more appealing as budgets get tougher to balance. Governor Patrick has asked Beacon Hill legislators for the power to make more cuts, and legislators have to decide how much control to give over.

"They are going to great lengths not to cut local aid," Representative James Miceli told the Crier this week. "My argument with the Governor is that when you cut some of these projects, you are in effect cutting local aid in the community."

Miceli referred to two cuts, $90,000 for Camp Pohelo in Tewksbury - an expense that will likely need to be picked up in part or in total by the School Department to serve children

Meals on Wheels program is lifesaver

By CHARITY B. LEGVOLD

WILMINGTON - For the remarkably low cost of $1 per meal, the Meals on Wheels program in Wilmington serves both nutritional meals and safety needs in the community.

The Meals on Wheels program provides homebound elders of Wilmington with one hot meal five days a week for the minimal cost of one dollar per meal. There are approximately 75-80 meals currently being delivered daily Monday through Friday. These numbers typically increase as winter snow and ice set in and make it increasingly difficult for elders to leave their homes safely.

Many of these elders rely not only on these meals, (most are physically unable to cook), but also on the human contact. The program has two drivers that are responsible for reporting to the Senior Center after making deliveries to give an update on the elders they visit.

Terri Marciello, Director of Elder Services, wants elders and their families to be assured that if these drivers should find any problems during the time of the delivery, the elder will be assisted, and the family will be notified. Marciello also emphasized that she handles the applications herself and, other than the two drivers who deliver food and check on elders, all information is kept strictly confidential.

In contrast to many communities in the area that utilize a Minuteman Senior Service Area caterer to provide food, the Meals on Wheels program in Wilmington is unique because the meals are prepared by Food Services at the West Intermediate School where drivers pick them up and deliver them directly to residents.

"The school is wonderful to us," said Marciello who empha-

Where does the power plant stand?

By JAYNE W. MILLER

TEWKSBURY - Two groups are lobbying for support against a power plant proposed in Tewksbury's backyard, prompting deep concern about air and water quality, traffic, risks to first responders, and carbon emissions. The developer of the plant, DG CleanPower, LLC, continues to move forward with federal, state and local processes that ultimately lead to siting, permits, and eventually opening.

DG CleanPower, LLC, together with Montgomery Energy Billerica Power Partners LP, proposed a 348 Megawatt "peaking" power plant for a site in North Billerica near Baker Commodities and Jack's Auto Parts, just over the Tewksbury town line. Entrance to the plant will actually be in Tewksbury. At 348 MW the plant would be the 13th largest power plant in Massachusetts. As a peaking power plant it will operate during periods of high electricity demand, typically winter cold snaps and hot summer days and on average 1,500 hours per year up to a maximum 2,300 hours per year. The plant, should it pass the hurdles before it, will use natural gas to power the facility, with up to 200 hours of ultra low sulfur diesel operation during periods of peak natural gas demand.

Two groups, the Billerica Watchers Group (BWG) and BillericaPowerPlant.org, were born out of opposition to the power plant proposal, and both seek the same goal, to stop the project. Billerica Watchers began as a group of Billerica residents that organized early on in the process and is the only group that has legal "intervener" status with the state Energy Facilities Siting Board (EFSB) process. Over the course of the project thus far, BWG has added to its ranks with members from other towns, including Karyn Sliva from Tewksbury, and played a prominent role during hearings, succeeding in substantially slowing down the permitting process.

Joseph Fitzpatrick, President and CEO of DG CleanPower, credits BWG with slowing down the process primarily at the state level. The EFSB process can take an indeterminate duration. The next hearing is slated for this Thursday at 10:00 a.m. at EFSB offices in South Station.

"We're going forward. We've made a couple of updates and changes, for example we've reduced emissions on the plant in response to concerns raised by BWG," Fitzpatrick told the Crier, describing plans for the plant. "It's obviously impacted the schedule; we are certainly not ready for 2009, and now are slipping into 2010-2011 time frame."

Fitzpatrick says that delayed action at the state level slows things down at the local level inasmuch as local officials like to know what the state wants and where the state stands on the project. But he lauds the EFSB and the thoroughness in recent weeks, saying, "I think the state is doing everything it can to make it clear that due process is a big issue with them."

At the last EFSB hearing the board allowed parties without intervenor status, such as State Senators and Representatives and other interested parties, to speak on the record before the board. Because BWG is the only group with legal intervenor status, it plans to incorporate those comments into the official record as part of its Response Brief once the EFSB makes its decision.

As to delaying the process, it's clear that Billerica Watchers is raising many doubts through the process. In a written statement to the Crier BWG writes, "It is also apparent that the EFSB is no longer considering the verbal, unsubstantiated statements from DG Power [sic] as fact... Our group's patience and diligence seem to be coming full circle as at the conclusion of the last hearing DG Power was instructed to provide proof of the assertions they were making to the EFSB relating to safety and that the Board was not interested in merely their opinion."

Going forward, if the EFSB approves the project, BWG wants to create a combined effort with all local boards to "take full advantage of the power granted to the Billerica Watchers, representing 22 intervenors from Tewksbury, Billerica and Pepperell, to hold DG Power accountable for every unsubstantiated assurance they have made which are unenforceable. Our goal and the goals of all neighboring boards is to protect the "quality of life" for all the residents of the Merrimack Valley."

BillericaPowerPlant.org (BPP) began as the brainchild of Paige and Victor Impink, Tewksbury residents that learned about the project by accident. As residents living near the town line with Billerica, Paige often takes her children to the Billerica library and it was there that she first encountered notices about the proposed power plant. Today BillericaPowerPlant.org focuses primarily on outreach and education about the project throughout communities neighboring Billerica.

The group has held well-attended information sessions in Tewksbury, Wilmington, Andover, Chelmsford and Lowell, increasing resident awareness and potential impacts to each community. State and local elected officials often attend the meetings, which lately have been broadcast on community cable access channels to reach an even wider audience.

Further, and perhaps even more successful, the BPP offers a subscription email service reaching a, "very large audience, and growing."

Though Paige Impink declines to release the specific number of persons reached through the email, she will say that her audience is throughout the Merrimack Valley and beyond. BPP does not have intervenor status and recognizes the technical and legal work the BWG is doing through the various federal, state, and local processes. "There's room for everybody here," said Impink. "Everybody has the right to oppose this project, if that is their inclination, in whatever manner they see fit."

Moreover, Impink sees room for major reform within the siting and permitting of power plants in today's world.

"The process is broken," said Impink. "A power plant should not be in a densely populated area, only hundreds of feet from homes, with the developer only required to notify people in a half mile radius when the impacts go far beyond that. How is it even allowed to waste a single taxpayer dollar on the consideration of siting a power plant that close to people?"

Impink also points out that a mere week is required from the date of notice until the date of comment is closed, and that information is only required to be posted at the local library and in the paper in that town. Impink, as a resident of Tewksbury, naturally does not read the Billerica paper. The criteria for the decision are also managed in silos so that the total impact is not measured together.

Impink raised the issue of increased truck traffic in the region due to the proposed plant, an area that other local officials and town boards have expressed concern from the construction process through to day-to-day operation. While Impink cites a 500 trucks per day figure during construction, which would drop to upwards of 38 per day during operation, Fitzpatrick says that his company is on the record with no more than 20 trucks a day, maximum, and only in extreme situations of when water is scarce or if the plant has to use diesel fuel.

Both groups also make inherency arguments against the power plant, that the power is not needed anyway with a declining population in Massachusetts.

ISO-New England, is an independent, non-profit organization that manages New England's power grid (more than 350 generating plants and more than 8,000 miles of high-voltage power lines) on a minute-by-minute basis to ensure there are enough resources to meet the demand for electricity, and that the power flows to where it is needed when it is needed.

"It is a role somewhat like that of an air traffic controller," wrote ISP New England spokesperson Marcia Blomberg in a written response to Crier questions. "ISO New England also plans for the region's future needs and oversees the wholesale competitive markets for electricity." ISO New England expects peak demand for electricity to increase by an average annual growth rate of 1.2 percent per year between now and 2017, or just less than 400 MW per year. The forecast for average annual growth is 0.8 percent.

Blomberg added that peak demand in New England typically occurs in summer during daylight hours when the weather is hot and humid. Demand for electricity continues to rise, even though the growth rate has slowed down, and is driven not only by population in the six New England states, but also by increasing use of air conditioning, computers, plasma televisions, and other consumer electronics.

Blomberg did not directly respond to the claim made that the Billerica Energy Center will likely run at night only once every ten years or that older, dirtier plants would be taken off line when this cleaner power generating facility is turned on, as ISO New England does not directly control the power plants. She did state that, "demand for electricity is usually highest during the day. Also, electricity cannot be stored - it must be generated in the moment it is needed."

Additionally, it is clear that market forces can dictate which power plants will be in demand, if newer plants can generate the power cheaper, since "fuel costs make up 85 percent of the wholesale cost of electricity."

To that end, it is interesting to note that, according to ISO New England, in May 2008, the average price of Natural Gas, the fuel proposed for the Billerica Energy Center, was $11.98 per Million British Thermal units, while oil was $14.40/Mbtu and diesel was a whopping $26.80/Mbtu.

INTRAFAMILY LOANS

Why go to a commercial lender when you can go to Mom and Dad? More within-the-family transactions are happening these days, often benefitting both lender and borrower.

Most vital is to have everything in writing. If the borrower is to pay interest, spell it out. In years to come you can, if you want to, forgive part of the loan ($12,000 per year per recipient per donor free of gift taxes; as much as $48,000 from Mom and Dad to daughter and her husband), but put the gift in writing, too.

You can give a no-interest or below-market-rate loan, if it is structured properly. As long as the loan is not invested to produce income, it may escape the "imputed interest" rule. Under these rules, a loan is treated as if it carries interest at an "applicable federal rate" determined by the IRS. Then the lender must declare phantom "income" of the interest and pay taxes on it; the borrower can deduct it.

This is not a do-it-yourself job. Come talk to the professionals at:

Miceli announces funding for new roof at Wilmington Housing Authority

BOSTON - Chairman James R. Miceli (D-Wilmington) is pleased to announce that the Wilmington Housing Authority will be able to replace their roof at the 705-1 43 North Street development because of a technical assistance and emergency capital improvement bond they received. The funding awarded, which will supplement the Housing Authority's existing capital reserves, is in the amount of $13,000 based on the expected cost of the project.

"I am so pleased that the Wilmington Housing Authority will be able to replace their roof. It is extremely important that this development is maintained for the benefit of the residents of Wilmington," said Chairman Miceli.

liquor license and is located in close proximity to Sonny's.

Newhouse had recused himself from the hearing due to information he had previously been exposed to in his capacity as an attorney. Despite an assurance from the State Ethics Commission that he would have no conflict of interest in the matter, he chose to avoid even an appearance of impropriety. Santini, however, alleges that Newhouse represents a new development that will be seeking a similar liquor license in Wilmington. Santini further alleges that Newhouse shared information with the voting members of the Board.

Santini alleges that McCoy had been conducting, "a one man investigation of the applicant's location two weeks before the transfer application was even filed with the town of Wilmington." Furthermore, Santini believes that McCoy should have recused himself from the Board's hearing since he owns a Common Victualer Alcohol Establishment in town.

The Town responded with a motion to vacate or quash the subpoenas. Within the motion Wilmington Town Counsel Daniel Deutsch wrote, "The purported conflict of interest on which the Applicant proposes to question Board members is a sideshow utterly irrelevant to the bona fides of the application."

Deutsch alleges that the proposed testimony of those subpoenaed would be irrelevant to the merits of the decision, and that Santini's allegations should be directed to the Ethics Commission of the District Attorney's Office.

According to Deutsch, "Out of an abundance of caution, Selectman Newhouse, who is a respected Wilmington attorney, explicitly recused himself at the start of the Board's hearing so that he would not have to solicit a waiver of attorney-client privilege to disclose client information obviating the appearance of a conflict of interest. Indeed, the applicant merely guesses (inaccurately) at the particular reason for Mr. Newhouse's recusal."

In regard to the allegation against Lepore, Deutsch wrote,

Tewksbury's Community Preservation Act

Dear Community Members:
As you may know, the Town of Tewksbury adopted the provisions of the Community Preservation Act (CPA), M.G.L. c.44B at the Town Election, April 2006.

In accordance with the CPA, the Tewksbury's seven-member Community Preservation Committee (CPC) has been appointed to administer the CPA in the Town of Tewksbury. The CPC includes representatives of the town's Board of Selectmen, Planning Board, Conservation Commission, Recreation Department, Housing Authority, and one at-large citizen member.

In accordance with the Act, there will be a Public Hearing for informational purposes at: Saunders Circle Meeting Room
Monday, November 3, 2008, 7:00 p.m.

In accordance with the CPA, projects must fall under one or more of the following topic areas:

- 1) Acquisition, creation or preservation of open space, or land for recreational use.
- 2) Acquisition or preservation of historic resources.
- 3) Creation or preservation of community housing.

Applications for projects should be submitted by January 1, 2008 to the CPC for consideration in the Annual Town Meeting. In accordance with the CPA, projects must be recommended for submittal to the Town Warrant by the CPC, and all projects must be approved at Town Meeting.

The CPC looks forward to working with the community on this important initiative.

Thank you,
The Tewksbury Community Preservation Committee

Absolutely Me

by Sharon Adelman Crowley

Many unhappy returns

Like most Moms, I spend a large percentage of my time running errands. My husband jokes that it's a hobby of mine. Except a hobby is something you enjoy. When it comes to errands, bringing items back to the store is anything but enjoyable.

To begin with, the phrase "running an errand" is a misnomer. It gives me the impression that it's going to be quick. In-and-out. And this is hardly ever the case when doing a return. Starting with the return line. In which there is usually one. One, singular, return line versus the fifteen other available lines. All ready and waiting for the purchasing customer. Do not attempt to step into such a line with a return. You will certainly be cast out. Made an example in front of those in the return line who might consider defecting.

Sometimes if you catch a merciful manager you can plead for a second return line to be opened. And in the luckiest of scenarios, you might find an entire area quarantined off just for returns. Yes, I said quarantined. Because it often feels just like that - roped off and segregated from the rest of the store.

The experience is most unpleasant from the start. Usually return lines are hot. They are not located near restrooms or water fountains. Often the air feels dusty from the pile of product waiting to be restocked on the sales floor.

When it comes to selecting the right line to stand in, luck is never on my side. If I see a short line in the midst of long lines, I look incredulous. As if someone has walked away from a winning slot machine and it's up to me to step up and cash in on the win before someone else does. Well, I'd like to share a recent epiphany with you. The short line has nothing to do with being the fastest. The short line is, in fact, the SLOWEST.

Prior to my arrival, someone stood before me in that very spot. Tortured by either a slow cashier or a clueless customer. Or both. Common sense kicks in and the line is vacated for another. Thus making the line seem short and available. Then enter me. I come in and see the short line, think I'm the only one who has noticed it, and rush right into the spot. Unaware that everyone around me was previously in that very line. And now they are all watching me - to see how long it takes to notice that I am in a gridlock. True to form, I start fidgeting and looking around. Then the irony dawns on me as I look over at all the smiling faces...on moving lines. But I usually stick to my principal and stay put. Eventually it's gotta move. Right?

Wrong. Because various forces are working against me. Perhaps a new employee has been left to handle the returns during the peak time of the day. His/her manager is also on break and no one can do a price check. Perhaps it's the fault of the customer - who for a variety of reasons is unprepared: no receipts, no tags, lost store cards, or attempting a return in the wrong store! Oh, sorry. That last one was me. I formally apologize to anyone who might have been behind me on that day.

But at least I recognize my shortcomings. I'm amazed how some customers are woefully unprepared at the register. Instead of using the time in line to get their ducks in a row, they use the very moment they reach the register to begin their search for the receipt! Emptying the contents of their bag on the counter - embarrassing contents spilling everywhere. Why not tape the receipt directly in the bag? Buyers beware - tossing a receipt into a dark, cavernous bag will not benefit you or me when return time is upon you.

I've also this misfortune: standing behind the customer who stocks up on returns for months, only to bring it all back in one lump sum. It's as if they went through their cupboards to return all things unused at home. Although this is interesting to watch, it's painful to endure. The cashier is then forced to page every manager, from every department, to come scrutinize the entire pile until it is deemed worthy of return.

If I were smart, I'd start a betting pool on the hold up. I'd put my money on the customer who returns without the receipt. The customer who is SURPRISED they cannot get cash back. Again, a litany of managers must be paged over. Each higher up in the chain of command than the other, to explain why this has been the policy for say, the last 60 years. Which happens to be when the customer last purchased this item. And again is surprised that they can't return the item, despite the fact that production on it was stopped shortly after WWII. If your product was riveted by the muscled arm of Rosie the Riveter, chances are you've exceeded the store's return policy.

Sometimes we can't help but to bring our children along for the return. They are the true barometers for how painful this experience can be. Their thresholds are much lower than ours, the poor things. Once I was impressed how beautifully a child behaved, until reaching the register. As if a switch flipped, the once docile child forcefully demanded to run the credit card through the terminal. And the mother, perhaps hot and dehydrated from standing in line for so long, actually gave the card to the child. Predictably, the child took off. A collective gasp was heard from all lines. The mother smiled weakly and stepped out of line to retrieve her child. I literally felt my life span shorten. She returned moments later with a hysterical child, kicking and screaming. And wouldn't you know, after all that her credit card didn't work. Expired. Did I mention that this was originally the short line?

How about this: do you ever find yourself peeking around the person in front of you to see what's being returned? I do. If the line is held up too uncomfortably long - I get impatient. I have to look for the culprit. It's like sitting in a traffic jam and trying to figure out if there's been an accident and who is at fault. In some cases, I can't believe what I'm seeing. I find myself thinking, "You bought THAT?" I saw that advertised on TV by that bearded guy who screams. Even I knew that was a scam..." Just because something comes with a free bottle of Orange Glo does not mean you should buy it. Next time, save yourself the return and just buy the Orange Glo.

On behalf of all customers making returns, I wish I had the power to revamp the entire system. I'd make it an experience. If asked what MY dream return would be, I'd roll it out like this: First, I'd enter the store, identify myself as a "return," without shame, and I would be escorted by a well-groomed employee to a well-groomed area of the store. Away from the hustle and bustle of the sales floor. Gorgeously lit. Return debris hidden from view - no obscene pile of riffraff from prior returns.

If there were no immediate view of the ocean, then well-appointed photographs would adorn each wall. My winter coat would be hung in a free coat-check. I'd be handed mineral water, seated in a plush, leather chair on wheels, and a masseuse would be in charge of both massaging the day's tension out of my shoulders - and moving my chair forward as I advance to the cashier.

Classical music would accompany an array of delicious snacks and beverages to refortify my low blood sugar from prior errands. Within view there would be a child's play area, soundproofed, equipped with Wii and all the latest technology so no child will ask the question, "Can we go home now?" And if my return is not up to standards - no problem. No tags? A new one is recreated with ease. No receipt? A simple scan of my fingerprint, can tell when I was last in the store and a duplicate is reprinted. There will be no statute of limitations on returns. Pre or Post WWII.

Essentially, I would be treated like a Vegas high roller. No once-over from the manager, but instead a sincere apology that the item didn't match my expectations and 50% off coupons for my patronage in the store again. I return to my car, which has been washed and detailed. And more coupons tucked into the windshield. I'd top this off with gourmet dinner waiting for me on the table when I get home, with even more coupons. Okay, that last batch of coupons would be taking it just a little too far.

As the holiday season approaches, and you inevitably find yourself in a return line, make a game out of this and see if you can spot some of these culprits. And if one day you happen to be in front of me making a return...please do me a solid. Please give me a sign if I've stepped into the wrong line.

Guest Op-Ed

WWOFFD on Question 1?

By Charles Lyons

Our nation's independence movement was inspired by the Patrick Henry assertion that 'taxation without representation constituted tyranny.' We had no vote or say in King George's England on tax policy, trade policy, or tariffs. Without the infusion of respected citizenry input, the disease of tyranny inspired colonist to create a perfect union where free men could collaborate on these issues, find common ground, to ensure peace and tranquility for all.

This idea of self-government, where neither kings, queens, armies nor militias would rule, but where a free people would be able to organize and indeed self discipline themselves in a manner where the greater good was paramount in the decision making process, only became possible because men of means, with names of Jefferson, Washington, Adams, Hamilton, Franklin, and others had the genius and vision to lay a foundation for an organized democratic self government. They didn't get everything right, but scribed a Constitution, with the flexibility for future change. Their most pressing challenge was the ability of the new government to organize itself, develop a monetary system respected by world trading partners, and establish a budget to ensure the principle of self-government was indeed sustainable. The Challenge? - Can we impose a spending and taxing system to provide the common defense, ensure domestic tranquility and provide the blessings of liberty for ourselves and for future generations?

For over 200 years America did a pretty good job. Back in 1980 our federal government debt was about $1 billion, and we seemingly met our obligations as a caring nation and world leader. That has changed. Our debt today is eleven times greater, primarily because we have failed to meet today's obligations with today's resources. Our credit card generation is having a difficult time paying interest alone, and our financial markets are reacting as a result. Our challenge today is similar to the one our founding fathers had back in 1775, how do we organize and self govern in a manner that the world's monetary system respects? We better get this right. Not only for ourselves, but also for world stability.

One other thing has changed dramatically since 1980. The use of referenda on local and state ballots. It is a useful tool to garner the public's opinion on a series of issues, but it is a dangerous tool for the formation of law and taxing policy.

Our embrace of the Constitution and its inclusion of fundamental values, principles and freedoms insured America would be a government of law and not men, thereby protecting the rights of the minority over sometimes the will of the majority. The elimination of slavery, the women's right to vote movement, the civil rights agenda, became realities because of our Constitution's structure and flexibility. These may not have received popular support when laws were enacted if these issues were subject to referendum.

Taxing policy should not be dictated by referendum either. Our elected representatives should be accountable to insure the cost of governing today should be offset with revenues collected today to pay for such. If they can't do that, they should be removed from office.

This year in particular the cost of governing at the local and state level is exceeding tax receipts. Nationwide, cities and towns are experiencing the perfect fiscal storm. For the first time in thirty years, sales tax revenues, income tax revenues, and property tax revenues are less than last year. Cutting state income tax revenues forty percent by referendum is similar to throwing kerosene on a burning building. The fire may glow for a while, but the damage will be unimaginable.

For the past two centuries, state and local governments have not been allowed to operate in deficit. This is both wise and prudent. The Question 1 proposition on the ballot on November 1st not only would cause fiscal havoc on programs offered by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and local services like schools, police and fire in cities and towns, but would compromise the fundamental fiscal structure upon which self governing is based. Similar to the significant challenge our founding fathers needed to address, we need to have the discipline and the sacrifice to insure others we can afford the luxury of self-governing.

Ask yourself this question before you vote on Question 1 - What Would Our Founding Fathers Do? The answer is obvious. Join them, join me, by voting No on this simplistic proposition that is an affront to our self-governing principles and budget balancing requirements.

Charles Lyons was an Arlington Selectman from 1981 to 2005. He is a past President of the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association and the National League of Cities. He authored the five year fiscal plan that Arlington is currently implementing. He is Superintendent of the Shawshen Valley Technical School District in Billerica, MA

Tewksbury Public School faculty receive special recognition

By Christine L. McGrath,
PhD

Superintendent of Schools

TEWKSBURY Ms. Ginamarie Talford, Humanities Department Head at Tewksbury Memorial High School and Ms. Jennifer Mrozowski, Grade Six Science Teacher and Team Leader at the John F. Ryan School have recently earned some well deserved professional recognition.

Ms. Talford has been invited by the Commission on American and International Schools Abroad (CAISA) from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC) to participate as a team member for the accreditation of the Marymount School in Medellin, Columbia. Ms. Talford was selected by CAISA in recognition of her skill as a master teacher and her detailed knowledge of the accreditation process.

She will join with a team of educators from the United States, Mexico and Central America. These educators will represent NEASC as well as the Council of International Schools (CIS). Ms. Talford will be responsible for reviewing the school staff, the curriculum and the philosophy and objectives of the School. She and the members of her team will offer a recommendation to NEASC and CIS regarding the future accreditation of the School.

Pearson Education has selected Ms. Mrozowski as a Pearson Most Valuable Teacher honoree. The honor affords her the opportunity to attend two regional conferences sponsored by the National Science Teachers Association. Jennifer is a highly successful teacher. She was selected in recognition of her tireless work in piloting the new science curriculum and in providing support to her colleagues in the implementation of the new curriculum.

Ms. Mrozowski will have the opportunity to share her expertise with science teachers from along the east coast at the National Science Teachers Regional Conference in Ohio. She will also have the opportunity to attend many of the workshops on the Regional Conference agenda and examine "cutting edge" instructional materials and teaching techniques. Her attendance at this conference and a future conference will be funded through the Pearson Most Valuable Teacher Program.

MS. MROZOWSKI

We are proud of both of these talented professionals. We have every confidence that they will take full advantage of these exceptional professional development opportunities and use these experiences to further enhance the work that they do in our school district each day.

Las Vegas Night Fundraiser, Oct. 24

Adding quality to the life of brain injury survivors

WOBBURN - According to national statistics, a person suffers a traumatic brain injury about once every 15 seconds. In Massachusetts, Supportive Living, Incorporated (SLI) is not only providing community style residential treatment for this increasing population, they are also adding to the quality of life through fundraisers such as the upcoming Las Vegas Night to be held at the Burlington Marriott Friday, October 24 at 7 p.m.

This year's fete marks the 17th year SLI has held its popular fundraiser. With the completion of Douglas House in Lexington, all proceeds from this event will go toward the new developments that are now in the planning stages.

The Las Vegas Night tables open during the reception at 7 p.m. Dinner will be served at 8 p.m. and a silent auction will be taking place throughout the evening.

There will be something for everyone at the fundraising gala. Including music for dancing after dinner until the night comes to a close.

A beautiful weekend away in Maine or an afternoon sail along Ipswich Bay are just two of the many items up for bid during the Silent Auction. Other items include lovely samples of New England art and sought after tickets to several sporting events.

For more information on the Las Vegas Night, or to make reservations, go to www.supportivelivinginc.org. Reservations can also be made by calling (781) 937-3199.

Douglas House, which will provide affordable housing for 15 survivors of brain injuries is on line and joins Warren House and McLaughlin House bring the total of traumatic and acquired brain injury survivors being served up to 38. Residents of all three homes benefit from 24/7 support services in their quest to live more independently in the community near family and friends.

Douglas House is located on the edge of Lexington's Town Center with immediate access to local amenities. Like Warren House and McLaughlin House, it is near transportation and areas of interest to the residents.

A sad fact of the war in Iraq and Afghanistan is the large number of our troops affected by brain injury as the result of improvised exploding devices (IEDs) that are used by the enemy insurgents. These numbers are added to the annual count of brain injuries that result from strokes, domestic violence and blows to the head suffered in car crashes.

SLI's administrative personnel are in conversations with the Veterans Administration and local veterans' agents to provide a model for the future care of returning vets suffering from combat related brain injuries. As a part of this plan the organization is looking at new locations for new houses to be opened within the next few years.

Supportive Living Inc. was the creation in 1991 of Carol Stephens and her late husband, Douglas, who were genuinely concerned about the lack of adequate, accessible and affordable housing and supportive services available to brain injury survivors. Continuing with this commitment, the organization is made up of survivors, family members, health care and supportive service providers, business people, and other interested individuals.

Bone Marrow Drive for Kerrie (McKearney) O'Brien

My sister has been battling Lymphoma for about a year. She is 37 and has 3 children; 13, 7, and 2. Her husband John is a pressman at the Boston Globe in Billerica.

I am asking you to take a bone marrow test to try and find potential donors for my sister. This test is at NO COST to you and NO BLOOD will be taken.

You will be asked to answer some basic health questions and a sample will be taken from your mouth with a cue tip. Because of the cotton swabs, I'm sure you'll be thirsty, so a bartender will be on hand for your beverage needs.

Please consider helping a family in need on Saturday, October 25th
at the Billerica Elks on Webb Brook Rd.
In the main hall from 1-5 p.m.

Thank you,
Scott McKearney

John M. "Jack" Walsh

V.P. and General Manager of Kamco Supply Corp., Member Wilmington Finance Committee

WILMINGTON - John M. "Jack" Walsh, age 52, of Wilmington, died October 18, 2008, at his home surrounded by his loving family. He was the beloved husband of Janet M. (Spagnolo) Walsh. Born in Malden he was the son of Dorothy (Dingivan) of Reading and the late Francis T. Walsh.

Jack served as the Vice Chairman of the Town of Wilmington Finance Committee for the past three years and was a member for over sixteen years.

He was the Vice President and General Manager of Kamco Supply Corp. of Boston for the past twenty-five years. Kamco Supply is the largest distributor of interior building materials on the East Coast.

Jack was also the current Treasurer of the Wilmington Republican Town Committee and an active member for the past fifteen years. Jack also served as a volunteer project coordinator for the Robert F. Kennedy Center for Human Rights.

Jack has an undergraduate degree from Suffolk University. He graduated from U Mass-Lowell in Accounting & Finance. He also graduated from Harvard University's Master's Program in Business and Administration and has an advanced certification in Corporate Safety & Health from New England Council of Health. He has been a member of a number of boards and committees for the town of Wilmington over the past sixteen years.

Most importantly, he was the father of his daughter Hannah, a husband to his beloved wife Janet and a good friend to those whose lives he crossed paths with.

He had no greater accomplishments than teaching Hannah chess, or to bait a worm or to be on the sidelines at soccer games or to offer constant words of encouragement and support. "No father stands as tall as when he is bending down helping his child," he was fond of saying.

His support went beyond family. At work, his door was always open, ready to assist in any personal or professional concern, in any way he could, if he could. When Jack was told it couldn't be done, he always answered with a coy, "Well, we'll just see about that." Jack was the ultimate "Fix it guy." He always made things right, he always made things better, and he always had a solution.

But no one knew him better or can co-celebrate his life more than those close around him, his wife Janet, Sister Patricia, Brother David or Sister-in-law Christine who saw him daily and watched him "make things right."

Jack is survived by his beloved wife, Janet (Spagnolo) Walsh and his devoted daughter Hannah Walsh of Wilmington. He was the brother of Thomas F. Walsh and his wife Kathleen of Groton, Patricia Stephenson and her husband Robert of Wakefield, and David A. Walsh of Reading. He was the son-in-law of Esther Spagnolo of Revere, brother-in-law of Linda Lattanzi and her husband Peter, Tina D'Augusta and her husband Peter all of Revere, Carol Sweezy and her husband Bob of Melrose, Christine Wilder of Wakefield, Ross Spagnolo of Virginia, and Paul Spagnolo of Boxford. He is also survived by many loving nieces and nephews.

Jack's funeral service was held from the Dello Russo - Cavanaugh Funeral Home 374 Main St., Wilmington, Wednesday, at 9 a.m. followed by a funeral service celebrated in the Wilmington United Methodist Church, 87 Church St., Wilmington, Wednesday, October 22nd, at 10 a.m. Relatives and friends were respectfully invited to attend. Visiting hours were Tuesday 4 thru 8. Services concluded with burial at Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

You can still enjoy the fall editions of the many home and lifestyle magazines available at the library. Articles of current interest include: "Simple Halloween Crafts & No-Carve Pumpkins" from Country Living, "45 Pages of Cozy Decorating, Easy Ideas, and Fabulous Fall Color" from Better Homes and Gardens, "America's Cutest Costumes" from Parents, and "Hearty Fall Flavors" from Cooking Light.

Renew Your Books Online

Avoid late fees and save gas by renewing your books online. Go to the library's web site www.wilmlibrary.org and click on "My Account." You will need your library card number and your pin number, which by default is the last four digits of your telephone number.

Fall Apple Festival.

Saturday October 25, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

The Friends of the Library invite residents to join in fun filled day of activities to commemorate the historic Baldwin apple. A schedule of events is available on line at www.wilmlibrary.org. Baldwin apples will be available while supply lasts during the festival.

Sparky's Puppets Presents Harvest Tales (and the Baldwin Apple Story)

Program: Saturday, October 25, 10 a.m.

Celebrate fall as Sparky's Puppets perform Harvest Tales on Saturday, October 25th at 10 a.m. See a special skit about the discovery of the Baldwin apple, an important part of Wilmington's history. Then, watch Brer Rabbit sneak into the vegetable garden to steal a prize-winning pumpkin. And find out what happens when a pesky goblin tries to outsmart a hard-working farmer in a trickster tale called "Tops and Bottoms". Sparky's Puppets dramatize favorite children's stories with colorful hand puppets, lively humor and plenty of audience participation. They have performed for children and family audiences throughout New England for over 30 years. All ages are invited to drop-in for the event, which is part of the library's Fall Apple Festival.

Halloween Fun

Tickets Available Beginning Thursday, October 16
Program: Thursday, October 23, 7 p.m.

Suit filed over cheerleading death

Tewksbury gym named as defendant

TEWKSBURY (AP) — A Medford woman has filed a wrongful death suit against a Tewksbury gym, three years after her 14-year-old daughter died in a cheerleading accident there.

Ashley Burns died from a lacerated spleen in August 2005 after performing a routine cheerleading stunt at the East Elite Cheer Gym.

The suit says Burns was "popped" up by two cheerleaders and attempted to perform a double-twist dismount, but fell.

Burns mother, Ruth Burns, told the Boston Herald she's been living her "worst nightmare" and wants to find out who's responsible for what happened. She said she hopes the suit will lead to new national safety standards for cheerleaders.

The Tewksbury gym did not comment.

Tech Hall of Fame ceremony

David Smith and Christian Botte are both from Shawsheen Tech's Class of 1993.

Smith is generally considered the best athlete to ever play for the Rams. His football talents led Smith to a career at Northeastern University before he joined the Army. Smith is now a captain in the Army.

Botte is truly an amazing story.

Legally deaf, Botte taught himself to play piano and graduated as one of the top students at Shawsheen Tech. He went on to attend Suffolk University, graduated as Valedictorian in 1997.

Dr. Eric Borsini graduated in 1991. After excelling both in the classroom and out in the community while in high school, Borsini went into the medical field and is now a practicing Chiropractor in Ohio.

Brian Theurer is the oldest member of the Class of 2008. A 1976 Shawsheen Tech graduate, Theurer is currently the Executive Chef at Café Escadrille in Burlington. He is also active on the advisory board for the school. Theurer has employed many co-op students at the popular Escadrille.

Two other Burlington natives are being inducted.

John Bagni graduated in 1986 and now owns Bagni Electric. Like many of the inductees, Bagni makes an effort to hire current and former Shawsheen Tech students.

April (Fitch) Graffeo has been quite a success story since leaving the school in 1988. A cheerleader for the Rams, Graffeo would later become a New England Patriots cheerleader and even attended the Super Bowl when the Patriots faced the Green Bay Packers. Now a successful businesswoman, Graffeo is the owner of the Indra Salon in Andover.

Two other 1986 graduates are also being honored.

Michael Corricelli is a Special Agent for the U.S. Postal Service Office of Special Investigations. Corricelli also spent time in the United States Air Force.

Robert Peach has also excelled in the business world as Peach is currently the vice president of business development for Intelligent Marketing Inc., specializing in technical sales and marketing of commercial security and sound products.

Alita McElhiney graduated in 1980 and has become a respected business leader in the field of computer science. McElhiney has stayed active as a member of the Shawsheen Tech community with a spot of the advisory board and has been an avid supporter of the Make a Wish Foundation as a wish granter.

Steve Uliss, a 1982 graduate, is another successful businessman and owns three Fireflys barbeque restaurants. Uliss also is an active member of Shawsheen Tech's advisory board.

Tickets for the event are $75 and proceeds from the event support the goals and mission of the Shawsheen Tech Alumni Association. Visit the Web site at www.shawsheenalumni.com for more information on the Hall of Fame event or call the school at 978-667-2111.

Katie Huffman, Reference and Adult Services Librarian, (on the right) teaches a computer instruction class to Grace Bovitz. The one on one Computer Basics class is taught on Tuesday mornings at 10 am and 10:30 am and on Tuesday evenings at 7 pm and 7:30 pm at the Wilmington Memorial Library. Call 978-694-2099 to register for this class. courtesy photo

Vitaly important Bone Marrow Drive this Saturday

TEWKSBURY - Scott McKearney of Tewksbury and his family are looking for people to take a simple bone marrow test this Saturday that could potentially save the life of his sister who has been battling lymphoma for about a year. Kerry (McKearney) O'Brien of Billerica is 37 and has three precious children age thirteen, seven, and two. Her husband, John, is a pressman at the Boston Globe in Billerica.

McKearney implores potential donors, "I am asking you to take a bone marrow test to try and find a donor for my sister. This test costs nothing and no blood will be taken but it could make a huge difference to my entire family."

According to McKearney, "You will be asked to answer a few basic health questions and after that they will take sample from your mouth with a cue tip. Because of the cotton swabs, I'm sure you'll be thirsty, so a bartender will be on hand to take care of your beverage needs."

The entire McKearney and O'Brien clan asks that you consider helping their family in this time of need and join them on Saturday, October 25. The bone marrow drive will take place at the Billerica Elks on Webb Brook Road, Billerica in the main hall from 1:00pm to 5:00 pm.

Meals on Wheels program is lifesaver

sized that it is truly a community effort to make the program such a success.

The $1 per meal fee goes back into the program through Food Services at the West Intermediate School. Marciello feels fortunate that they can still offer the meals to residents at that price. "It is such an important program now more than ever," said Marciello.

Marciello said that three to four times per year different organizations step up to provide special catered homebound meals. The recipients of these special meals, typically a chicken dinner consisting of a boneless breast of chicken, stuffing, mashed potatoes, green beans and salad, have been very grateful because often the meal is so large it makes several smaller meals that last them several days.

On July 1, 2008 the Wilmington Police Union donated the meals and delivered them to residents. On November 1, Abundant Life will experience its first opportunity to provide and deliver the special meals. "It is wonderful that people like the Police Union and Abundant Life are coming forward to help with this program," said Marciello who added, "We're so fortunate to have a great community that always pulls together."

Residents requesting Meals on Wheels services for themselves or for a loved one are required to present a doctor's note stating that the recipient can eat the foods offered in the program. All meals are cooked without added salt. Although the main course is cooked without added sugar, there may be added sugar in the desserts.

Local Aid not on the chopping block...yet

with Individualized Education Plans in the summer - and $200,000 for the Butters Farm historic preservation in Wilmington.

Miceli cautions that the Patrick Administration is not absolutely agreeing that it will not cut local aid, but that to obtain transferability between accounts or make further cuts in 9C provisions in the law, the administration will have to go through the legislature.

Tewksbury Town Manager David Cressman echoed that the Patrick Administration wants to avoid cutting local aid but warns, "That's not to say that it's not going to happen, and not to say that it won't happen next year."

Likewise Wilmington Town Manager, Michael Cairra, told the Crier "in terms of specific local aid, the Governor has not touched lottery receipts, additional assistance, and Chapter 70 School Aid, yet."

Cairra says the financial crisis is likely not over, and even if it is, ramifications will likely extend into next year. Changes in Chapter 70 funding that have helped Wilmington in recent years with the state finally coming to grips with parity among towns, may not continue. Both Wilmington School Superintendent Joanne Benton and Cairra agree that they are looking at level funding at best for next year.

"The future is as daunting as the present at this point," said Cairra.

Benton's additional concerns surround a possible decrease in federal dollars funding Special Education, Title I reading specialists, and more.

"I just don't know how this is going to play out," said Benton, who is recommending that principals take a conservative approach in budgeting for next year, to think outside the box for creative funding, and not add any programs without subtracting something else in order to maintain level funds.

Cairra adds that over the years whenever Wilmington received extra money from the state the town opted to put that money away so that during times there were cuts in local aid the town was able to continue services without cutbacks and layoffs by relying on some of that surplus.

"I'm not suggesting that we're immune to the problem, certainly we're not, but we're prepared for it," Cairra told the Crier.

Cressman and Finance Director Donna Walsh told Town Wide Budget Subcommittee members that early projections show a $3 million deficit for next year. According to Walsh's numbers, revenues are up 1.34 percent, whereas expenditures are up five percent for schools, 10 percent for unclassified (pensions and health care), and town departments up two percent for the next fiscal year.

"I'm not in a full scale panic. Its early yet," reassures Cressman.

Right now the financial crisis in the credit markets is hurting Tewksbury in regard to new growth. The Village Green project, for example, has been put on hold for the time being because the project is experiencing trouble obtaining the major financing required. Already the project broke ground and was doing foundation work, planning to build above the foundation this month. When New Growth figures decline, it translates to revenue available to the schools, says Cressman.

Part of Tewksbury's Financial Plan Task Force recommendations included amounts and percent spending figures for town and school departments. A table available online through the Board of Selectmen's page on the Tewksbury.info website indicates a strong prioritization of spending similar to those priorities elucidated at Town Meeting last June.

The Financial Plan Task

Force recommended that Public Safety, School Department, and Unclassified & Fixed expenditures account for the lion's share of the budget at 82 percent. While decreases were adopted in all departments for FY09, the largest percent decreases of 17.4, 22.43. And 22.61 percent came in the General Government, Public Works, and Community services budgets respectively. The School Department lost $4.8 million from the FPTF recommended budget, for a loss of 12.95 percent. The allocation to Vocational-Technical education actually increased 0.39 percent, a sum of $18,157.

The Tewksbury Townwide Budget Subcommittee voted last week to institute a hiring freeze in light of the projected deficits.

Pupil enrollments, which also play into Chapter 70 funding for school districts, declined again this year in Tewksbury, down 177 students from October 2007. Enrollment in Wilmington dropped a modest 14 students, Superintendent Benton told the Crier this week. Over the last five years Tewksbury has seen an enrollment decline of about 1.5 percent, less than the state average decline of 2.5 percent. 131 of those lost Tewksbury enrollments come from last year's eighth graders going into ninth grade. A study by the Pioneer Institute, a non-profit Public Policy think tank, blames statewide decreasing enrollment on demographics.

Because the formula for determining Chapter 70 funds includes calculations partially based on enrollment, a decrease in enrollment can translate to a decrease in local aid. However, built in increases for inflation may offset any decrease in FY10. Last year a decrease in enrollment meant less local aid for Tewksbury.

Maura Lynch

WHS Assistant Field Hockey Coach

*pictured on left, with head coach Jodi MacKenzie on the right

Maura, were you an athlete at Wilmington High School?
I was an athlete at Wilmington High School from 1996-2000. I was captain of the field hockey and softball teams.
Was playing in high school what got you into coaching?
My high school field hockey and softball coaches respectively, Patti Cushing and Paul Lyman were instrumental in getting me involved in coaching. Patti was such a positive, dedicated, inspirational, and caring coach. She's now a best friend of mine.

Paul was so knowledgeable about softball. [He] knew how to get the very best out of players of all ability levels, knew how to get his players to have fun, and taught us an insatiable desire to win. My father (John), a great baseball and hockey player, also inspired me in athletics; he made it to every single high school game I played in. I have been coaching for about six years.

Where did you go to college and did you play sports there?
I have an degree in English from UMass-Lowell and a Master's in Education from there as well. I never played sports in college. Gerald Sullivan, also from Wilmington, encouraged me to play at Merrimack (I went there as a freshman in college). He talked to the coach for me and everything

Wildcats fight back to tie Amesbury

By JAMIE POTE

You couldn't wipe the smiles off their faces. You couldn't take them down from Cloud Nine either. Rightfully so, the smiles and the pats on the backs should remain for quite some time.

On Monday night, the Wilmington High School Field Hockey team played its best team game all season long, and put forth an effort the program hasn't seen in a long time. During most of the game, the Wildcats all but dominated Amesbury in front of a loud crowd, who watched the seniors play their last home game of their careers.

Tri-captain Ruth Blaisdell sent a pass out to Liz Crannell off a corner, and then tipped home a hard shot just inside the left post to tie the game up 1-1 with ten minutes to go in the game. Both teams had its chances to pull out a game winner in the final minutes but neither could, and both teams walked off Alumni Stadium with a hard earned 1-1 tie.

First-year head coach Jodi MacKenzie said she knew all along her girls would put forth the tremendous effort from start to finish.

"Wasn't that a fantastic game? I knew it would be a good one because since the beginning of the season, we have come so far," said MacKenzie. "There was so much intensity in that first game we played against Amesbury. I knew it would carry over to this game. I kept telling the girls throughout the season, that this would be a big game because of that intensity from the first time we played them.

"And then I started to network everyone from the town to come to the game to help pump the girls up even more," she concluded with a chuckle.

Wilmington indeed seemed pretty pumped up, having two great scoring chances in the first half. Fiona Gately had a nice bid at the left side of the net and her shot was kicked out, and that happened just minutes before Danielle Sugrue, was denied on another scramble in front. Then late in the first half, Sarah Choi set up

Kerry Hanafin, and her quick turnaround shot was also saved keeping the game scoreless at the halftime break.

Wilmington kept up the offensive pressure in the first 12 minutes of the second half. All in all, the Wildcats had five corners in the second half, and a great bid came on the second one when Crannell wound up for a rocket shot, which was headed to the back of the net but was redirected out of bounds.

At the midway point of the second half, Amesbury got on the board as captain Gabrielle Magnifico sent a blazing shot past goalie Katie Riley, who had no chance of stopping it. Riley played another very

Senior Night a start of something special

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

It seemed fitting that a senior pulled through and perhaps helped turn the season and the program completely around, on "Senior Night".

Trailing 1-0 with ten minutes to go, Ruth Blaisdell tipped home a shot from Liz Crannell, after Blaisdell started the offensive threat by making the initial pass off a corner. The goal allowed Wilmington to celebrate with a much-deserved tie against Amesbury held Monday night, as the Wildcats played their final home game of the season.

Ties and wins haven't come too often during the last four years the six seniors (captains Blaisdell, Kerry Hanafin and Katie Riley, with Shannon O'Donoghue, Emily Pothier and Courtney Shelton) have been with the program. In fact in the four years, the Wildcats have combined for a record of 7-53-4, while Amesbury has a combined mark of 35-28-16 (4-9-4 this season).

Wilmington played fantastic throughout Monday night's 60-minute contest. From start to finish, the team played field hockey like it's meant to be played, and was played for such a long period of time in Wilmington, especially in the 70s, 80s and 90s. Every member of the team played with passion, with fire and with a sense of urgency and conviction. The team played with a lot of heart and desire, and certainly that grit was evident, something that has been lacking for quite some time, including earlier this season.

Head coach Jodi MacKenzie watched her offense click, the midfielders send the up field and keep the ball from entering its zone, and its defense with Riley in the net, play marvelous, with clear outs and big saves.

So was this just one magical game, or is this program finally going to turn the corner and get over the one, two and three win cycle it's been on for quite some time?

"I think Wilmington Field Hockey has a great future," said Hanafin. "The team has improved greatly and I think in a few short years, the program will be completely turned around and we'll be looking at more wins."

Hanafin has been a sparkplug - a big-time hustler, who gives off nice passes, and gets so built up whenever she hits a field hockey field, or ball for that matter.

"Kerry is aggressive and she loves to be in the game at all times," said MacKenzie. "She would jump on the ball, roll around on the ground just to be in the game. She's very, very energetic. I think at times during games, she gets overly

I was pretty much set to play, but hesitated because of an ACL tear that happened when I was a sophomore in high school.

I know you are a teacher at Wilmington High School. What do you teach and how do you enjoy it?

I am an English teacher at WHS. I absolutely love teaching! I couldn't imagine doing anything else, and I get the summers off. What many people don't know is that teaching is hard, hard work. However, the rewards are so worth it. When a student lets you know how much you've meant to them or helped them, there's nothing better.

How do you like working with varsity coach Jodi MacKenzie? Did you know her before you began coaching?

Jodi is amazing. We've been friends since I was a freshman in high school. Jodi is just a fun person to be around, she's always smiling and having fun. She keeps the girls spirits up. How has the transition been this year from freshmen coach to JV coach?

The transition has been almost seamless. I'm working with a best friend, in Jodi. We played a bit of field hockey together and two years of softball together at the varsity level under Mr. Lyman.

Coaching JV this year has been rewarding. I was able to take my freshman players from last year with me and it has been nice watching them grow and develop. The girls will definitely tell you I'm a different coach, and I have to be; JV is more competitive than freshman. I've pushed the girls a lot and they've done well. I want them to win, so I can be intense sometimes. Our record right now is 10-2-3.

Do you find that you and Jodi have similar coaching styles?

I think we complement each other really well. I think she would agree. The season has flown by coaching side-by-side with Jodi. We were both athletes at Wilmington High School and, for the most part, were used to winning, so we want the same for our girls and for the program.

Do you have any favorite memories from playing in high school?

My high school athletic memories are endless. My favorite memory would have to be beating Tewksbury 3-1 in the quarter-finals (of the MIAA Division 2 softball tournament). It was my senior year, I'll never forget it.

How can the coaches and athletes begin to turn things around at the varsity level in terms of wins?

There is no question that our record will be improving. Varsity now has two wins and three ties. It's already an improvement from last year. Jodi and I need to help the girls learn to have that innate desire to win. It's hard because you can't really teach or coach that. That desire is just there in an athlete. They will get there, though. Next year looks really promising. This year's freshmen and sophomore classes are talented.

What is your favorite part of coaching?

My favorite part of coaching is being with the girls. We have a great group, we couldn't ask for a better one. They're funny, smart, kind, and hard working.

Fitzzy catches on nicely with MIT

By DAN IGO
Sports Correspondent

Many college athletes are able to juggle their expectations on the field with their expectations in the classroom. Some even are able to hold a part-time job or internship. But few have pulled off what Mike Fitzgerald is pulling off at arguably the best university in the country.

Fitzgerald, a native of Wilmington, is entering his junior year as a wide receiver for the MIT football team. This semester, he is a full-time intern for the Boston Celtics. But the Malden Catholic alum says the positives for his heavy workload far outweigh the negatives.

"Balancing football and academics is tough," he said. "It's tiring, but it's definitely worth it. The weeks are always busy, but they go by fast, and it's usually fun. I couldn't see myself going about it any other way."

Head coach Dwight Smith doesn't mince words about the challenges of playing football for him at MIT.

"MIT is a very difficult place to be a student athlete," he said. "The time commitment that is necessary to achieve scholastically is phenomenal. Our players, including Mike, know and understand this and accept the challenge."

Some of the world's most influential figures are MIT alumni, including former UN Secretary General Kofi Annan and Apollo 11 astronaut Buzz Aldrin, who was one of the first men on the moon. Understandably, Fitzgerald was a little apprehensive when visiting the school.

"To be honest, I was pretty skeptical about going to MIT before my overnight visit. I knew it was a prestigious school academically, but I was unsure how I would fit in with the students there," he said.

That all changed when he met and interacted with the football team.

"When I stayed overnight, I stayed with a fellow wide receiver and met all of the football guys and realized that MIT would be a great fit for me," Fitzgerald said. "MIT offered me the opportunity for playing time early in my career."

"(Our) freshman class and the class ahead of us looked (like it had) a very strong core of players, and at the end of the day, I'd be getting a degree from MIT, something that I really couldn't turn down."

Fitzgerald said he knew he'd be playing football if he attended MIT. The school is Division III, and therefore cannot offer athletic scholarships.

The fact that the players compete for the love of football separates them from other student-athletes.

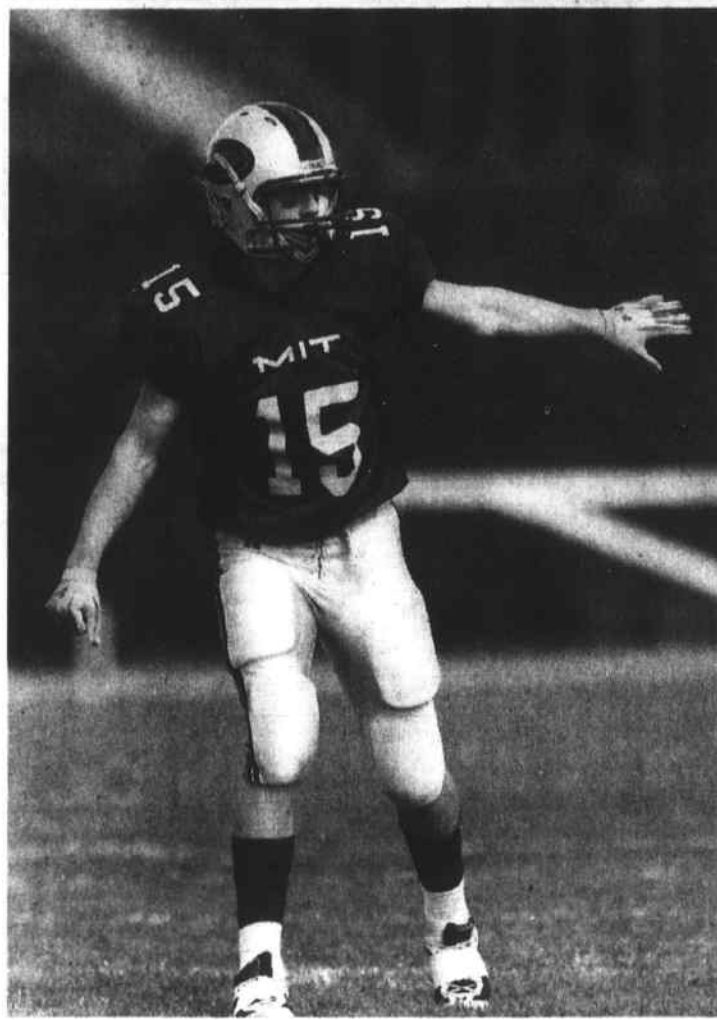

"Everyone who is on the team plays because they want to be there, which I think really says something about the commitment of our team," Fitzgerald said. "Even when dealing with arguably the highest workload of any college student in the nation, the guys on our team remained committed to the game of football."

Injuries derailed Fitzgerald last year but he has emerged this year as a threat, according to Coach Smith.

"Mike is currently enjoying a strong year as one of our three top receivers," he said. "Mike is very fast, works hard and is a student of the game. I expect him to continue to contribute."

Fitzgerald has been able to use his speed to help keep defenses honest.

"This year I've had success at stretching the field and making plays down the sideline," he said. We've had tremendous success with the running game this year, so we've been able to take shots down the field, and I've had success there."

Wilmington resident Mike Fitzgerald, shown here during last season, has done a nice job as a wide receiver for the MIT Football team. (courtesy photo/MIT)

Fitzgerald scored his first touchdown as freshman back in 2006. This year, he has 10 catches for 182 yards and a TD. He says this year's touchdown, which he scored against Mass Maritime, is much more meaningful than his first one.

"My grandfather recently passed away as he lost his battle with cancer, but he was able to make it out for that game," he said. "It was the last game he ever saw me play and it was great to score the opening TD for him."

MIT isn't exactly a powerhouse football school, so Fitzgerald is realistic about his expectations. However, that definitely won't affect the effort on the field from him or his teammates.

"My expectations for the rest of the year (are) to challenge for the best record in franchise history (6-4)," he said. "Currently, we're 3-3, so it will be tough, but we definitely have the talent and commitment to do it."

As for his Celtics internship, there's an interesting story to how he might have gotten it. Last spring he drove 11 hours to Detroit with a couple of friends to watch the Celtics take on the Pistons in the Eastern Conference Finals. When he was there he caught sight of Jeff Van Gundy and Mark Jackson, two commentators with former NBA ties.

"I told Van Gundy that I went to MIT and he thought it was cool," Fitzgerald said. "He said he'd give me my resume to some people with the (Houston) Rockets."

Fitzgerald wants to go into statistical analysis after school, and the Rockets GM, Daryl Morey, got his MBA from the MIT Sloan School of Management.

Fitzgerald ended up taking an operations internship with the Celtics after the Rockets were slow to get back to him, but he says there's a chance he can catch on with an internship with Houston in the summer.

"My ultimate goal is to be a GM (in the NBA)," he said. "At the very least, I'm making good contacts right now."

Tashev completes Bay State Marathon

By MIKE GIANNATTASIO
Sports Correspondent

Miroslav Tashev was one of 1,193 people who participated in the 20th annual Baystate Marathon this past Sunday in Lowell, Massachusetts.

The marathon was a 25.4 mile double loop course that began at the Boarding House Park and ended after the second loop at LeLachur Park.

Tashev, 46, is from Bulgaria, as he grew up there and lived the first part of his life there. A few years after graduating high school in Bulgaria, Tashev moved to the United States in 1991 when he was 29 years old.

He has a Bachelor Degree in Horticulture and currently works for Wholesale Flower Company, 'Bay State Flower Direct' as a manager of the bouquet department.

He finished the lengthy road race on Sunday with a time of 3:37:57, which was good enough for 459th place.

"This was my first marathon ever," said Tashev. "One of my friends told me about it around the end of July."

Tashev added that he thought the event was well-planned and the environmental conditions outside made it even easier to run.

"I thought the race was great as it was very organized and it was beautiful weather for running," said Tashev. "My wife and my daughter were also there to cheer me at the finish line."

Tashev said he started training for the Baystate Marathon this past summer, as he would run long-distance several days throughout the week.

"I started to run during the end of July and I ran about five to six miles per day for about three to four times per week," said Tashev. "I currently try to run at least 20 to 25 miles per week."

Tashev was hoping to finish the Baystate Marathon with a time under 3:30, and he came up only about eight minutes short. He said he did accomplish his lifelong goal of participating in a lengthy road race.

"To run a marathon was my long time dream and I made it come true," said Tashev.

Tashev now hopes to succeed in running The Boston Marathon, a 26.1 mile road race that takes place on Patriot's Day every April.

"That is the marathon I would really like to run, but I have to cover a lot of ground till then," said Tashev.

Finishing in the top half of the pack in a 25.1 mile road race is a very good start.

Handful of locals compete in Lowell road race

By MIKE GIANNATTASIO
Sports Correspondent

The 20th annual Baystate Marathon and Baystate Half Marathon was another hit on Sunday, as over 2,189 people from many different states took part in the event. Several locals from both Tewksbury and Wilmington factored into this large number of participants as well.

Both the 25.1 mile marathon and the 12.3 mile half marathon started at 8:30 a.m. on Sunday, as 1,193 people ran in the full marathon and 996 people ran in the half marathon.

Registration was $75 for the marathon or $55 if signed up by October 1st. It was $55 to sign up for the half marathon on Sunday, or a $35 pre-registration fee.

There were seven age groups in each of the races, and this included a 19 and under age group, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, 60-69, and lastly an age group for runners ages 70 or above.

Medals were given to all participants that finished each road race, and long sleeved t-shirts were given to the runners as well.

Most people that run in The Baystate Marathon look at it as a premier qualifying opportunity for The Boston Marathon, one of the most popular events of its kind today.

Five runners from Tewksbury ran in the 25.1 mile marathon on Sunday, and this included Mike Doherty (3:30:48), Brian McCarthy (3:44:48), Vinnie Napoli (4:19:33), James Cain (5:15:07), and Jeffrey Versackas (5:21:51).

Locals from Wilmington competing in the full marathon included John Gorvin (3:27:33), Miroslav Tashev (3:37:57), Kevin Yetman (3:53:41), Anthony Ong (3:57:33), Lisa Hodge (4:01:10), Kristen Long (4:09:08), and Catherine Kane (4:29:42).

Two locals from Wilmington participated in the Baystate Half Marathon, and this included Trenton Hoyt (1:49:31), and Mark Goodwin (2:03:24).

Wildcat girls suffer disappointing loss

By JAMIE POTE

After taking care of business by winning six games in a row, the Wilmington High School girls' soccer team now finds itself in a tough predicament after a very disappointing performance on Monday.

The Wildcats seemed to have taken a step back, not playing with any urgency, and Georgetown took full advantage of that coming away with a 1-0 win played on Wilmington's home turf at the Shawheen Elementary School.

The loss to the Royals puts Wilmington at 7-5-2 overall, which means the team needs four points in its last four games to reach state tournament play.

"Yeah this is extremely disappointing," said head coach Sue Hendee. "Our goal was to win seven games in a row that I thought we really should. The six prior to this was relatively easy, and I knew this one would be a step up but the result is certainly a disappointment."

The Wildcats faced Masconomet on Wednesday with results not known as of presstime, before facing another powerful squad in North Andover on the road Friday night. In the first week of the season, Masco and North Andover defeated Wilmington

LAWRENCE - Leading 21-7 with 3:57 to go in the first half, it appeared as if the Wilmington High School Football team was about to make it six wins in a row to start the season, and five wins in a row over Lawrence, since the Lancers entered the Cape Ann League back in 2004.

But then the Lancers stormed back scoring four unanswered touchdowns to go up 34-21 with 7:21 left in the game. Wilmington never quit scoring the game's final two touchdowns, the first coming with 4:48 to go, and the second coming with 40 seconds left. That second score made it 34-33, and the Wildcats elected to go for the two-point conversion. However, Steve Stewart's QB draw was immediately sniffed out by tackle Jose Vargas who made the stop, allowing Lawrence to come away with the one-point victory in a Cape Ann League Large School showdown played Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The win for Lawrence was described by Lawrence Eagle Tribune writer Hector Luongo as: "Arguably the biggest win in program history since the 1985 'Wing and a Prayer' Thanksgiving shocker over Lowell". The last time the Lancers defeated the Wildcats was back in 1994, a 43-21 contest when both teams were members of the Merrimack Valley Conference.

The loss for Wilmington puts the team at 5-1 overall, and behind the 8-ball in the large school standings at 0-1.

"It was kind of a crazy game," said head coach Mike Barry. "It came down to one play last week and we made it, but tonight we fell one play short. But that's the way it goes. You have to give credit to Lawrence. They made more plays than we did, and that's the life of football. Now, you look at the mistakes you made, you try to correct them, and you move on."

Trailing 34-21 with 7:12 to go, the Wildcats started a drive on their own 20-yard line after captain Chris Thibault pounced on a Lancers' fumble. Wilmington quickly moved up field, putting together a 6-play, 80-yard drive capped off by Evan Butters' third touchdown of the game, this one coming from four yards out darting to his left. That made the score 34-27, and was the start of two interesting conversion calls. This time, Wilmington elected to go for the kick but it missed wide right.

"The thing was we went for one. We thought we had it

BILLERICA - For the second year in a row, the final week of the Cape Ann League boys' soccer season has come down to three teams fighting for the championship. Last year both Wilmington and Masconomet outlasted North Andover and ended up sharing the title with identical league records of 10-1-2. Entering this week of play, it's very close again with the three teams.

As of Tuesday night, Masconomet is tops in the league with 22 points (11-0-0) and have two games left with Wilmington and North Andover.

Wilmington and North Andover are tied for second in the standings with 19 points but Wilmington has a game in hand. The Wildcats are 9-0-1 and have contests left with Masconomet, North Andover and Amesbury. North Andover stands in at 8-0-3 in the league, and have games left with Wilmington and Masconomet.

Wilmington faced Masconomet on Wednesday night with results not known as of presstime, and then will host North Andover on Friday night at Alumni Stadium. The final contest against Amesbury, is a make-up game scheduled for Monday, November 3rd. The Masco-North Andover game is slated for Tuesday night.

All three of the Cape Ann League schools, Masconomet (#2), Wilmington (#9) and North Andover (#14) have received tremendous respect for its successful seasons, all within the Boston Globe's Top 20 Eastern Mass teams.

The Wildcats would have been in better shape for the league title, had they not ended in a scoreless tie with Rockport last Thursday. After that aggravating game and disappointing result, Wilmington came back and played very well finishing in a 1-1 tie against Billerica in a non-league game played Saturday night, before dominating Georgetown to a tune of 4-0 on Monday afternoon.

"We have the big three league games left, and that tie did hurt us," said head coach Steve Scanlon, who guided the team to its first league title in school by scores of 5-1 and 6-3.

The season will conclude with a nonleague game against Dracut, and then a make-up game with Amesbury (6-8-0).

"It's not like we are out of it by any stretch of the imagination, but our backs are up against the wall with back-to-back games with Masconomet and North Andover, and then we have Dracut who has been doing relatively well in the MVC. Then we end with Amesbury," said Hendee.

Wilmington didn't generate any legitimate scoring chances in the first half, but did put two shots on net. In the second half, the Wildcats had six shots on net, but mostly were outside shots that were right at the keeper for easy catch saves. Junior Brittney McLaughlin had the best chance, receiving a great heads-up pass from Allie Robbins. McLaughlin beat the defender for the loose ball, and from a tough angle, her shot was directed right at the legs of the keeper for a critical save. That chance came minutes after Georgetown got on the board on a nice shot that landed inside the left post.

After McLaughlin's bid,

Wilmington had several more with Charlotte Jensen's direct kick from outside the '18 caught by the keeper, as was McLaughlin's shot under two minutes which came on a nice pass from Danielle Polcari.

"My biggest concern is that we didn't score today," said Hendee. "And now it becomes even a bigger challenge against Masco and North Andover. We need to take advantage of the opportunities that are given to us - we just seemed to have let some of them go."

"I think today was more of a mental lapse than anything else. Physically it was back-and-forth and relatively even, I just think that Georgetown wanted it more."

On Thursday, Wilmington defeated Rockport, 5-0. Jensen, Stephanie Benson, Kaitlyn Souza, McLaughlin and Liz Chin all had single goals. Lisa Rooker had two assists and also came in relief of starting goalie Jackie Zarembo to combine for a shut out. McLaughlin and Souza also had one assist each.

Sr. Night the start of something special excited and she can't control it. But the last two games she has really been able to hold that together and play great. She's done a really good job for us as a senior captain.

Hanafin and MacKenzie agreed that a lot of the intensity from Monday's game was built up in the previous meeting between the two teams, a 2-0 win by Amesbury early in September. But the rematch, Hanafin says, was more of a pride thing.

"We are pretty pumped about at least tying," she said. "Amesbury has been a pretty big rival of ours, and they were out for blood so we put up a good fight against them."

In the early goings of this season, Wilmington was struggling. The Wildcats lost to Cape Ann League foes, Masconomet, 5-0, Pentucket, 1-0, Amesbury 2-0 and North Andover 6-0 - a combined margin of 14-0. Then towards the middle of the season, the scores were much better finishing with 1-1 ties with Pentucket and Amesbury, and falling to North Andover, 4-1 and Masconomet, 3-1 - a combined margin of 9-4.

"I think a lot of the times we play to the level of the team we play," said Blaisdell. "So if we were playing a weaker team we would fall down to their level. But I think we've done a lot better especially towards the end of the season. (Tonight) was probably our best game of the season. I'm glad we put up such a good fight. I thought we played really well."

While the skill level has certainly improved, it seemed like the biggest difference was actually becoming and playing like a team.

"It seemed like the team connection was a lot better this year," said Blaisdell. "We all got along really well."

That according to MacKenzie, started with Riley, Hanafin and Blaisdell taking on the proper duties and responsibilities dating back to when MacKenzie was first appointed the position back in the spring.

"All of my captains make up a good crew and they have all been fun," said MacKenzie. "They are all funny and they all get along, so it makes it fun for them and a lot easier for me. They were very reliable, so I was able to give them the responsibility throughout the school year and starting last year. They pulled together the summer camps and they pulled together the summer league. I think that helps them become better players, and it helps them play with each other better."

Not only did Riley, Blaisdell and Hanafin play in their last home game on Monday night, so did the other seniors, O'Donoghue, Pothier and Shelton, who MacKenzie said will also be sadly missed.

"Overall I've had a great senior crew and I'm actually scared to see them go," said MacKenzie. "Next year is going to be exciting and everything with the new group coming up because we have some good freshmen coming in and stuff like that, but these seniors have been so much fun. I've had these girls since the beginning (as the program's JV coach). I can actually joke with them and they aren't insulted. They actually get my humor. It's about team chemistry."

Team chemistry was very high after Monday night's tie especially with the seniors, who had this one last chance to bond with each other on their home field.

"Seeing Ruth get that goal was perfect - it's Senior Night, and the last home game against Amesbury, so that was great to see her get that," said MacKenzie.

And it's great to be a witness to what hopefully is the start of something special ... Wilmington Field Hockey getting back on the map.

JV Field Hockey team posts ten victories thus far

By ANDREA CORRIVEAU
Sports Correspondent

After struggling for several years, the Wilmington Field Hockey Team now has something to look forward to.

The JV team currently has a winning record of 10-2-3 and that certainly gives a ray of hope for the future years.

"All the girls have improved so much," said Coach Maura Lynch, "I see our teams to be good next year as a result."

Among her athletes, Lynch highlighted Jenna Whooley, the team's lead goal scorer, is "great at bringing the ball up the field," said Lynch. Bridget Blaisdell follows right behind Whooley as the team's second biggest goal scorer. These girls were aided greatly by the work of Kellie Moon, of whom Lynch said she had, "too many assists to count," and is great at dribbling and passing the ball.

Lynch also named Kay Tummino, the team goalie, as the communicator of the group. "[She] voices what we need to work on," and Ryan Newhouse for "holding everything together."

Continuous improvement seems to be a common theme for the team this year. Lynch mentioned several times that her team was improving in every way, both as individuals and as a whole.

"The two teams we lost to in the beginning of the year, we tied or beat the second time around," she said. "I think that shows great improvement as the season has gone."

Lynch also mentioned the improvement of Katie Korowski, who was pulled up from the freshman team early in the season, and Liz Olson. Lynch also said that she "envisions great things from Meghan [Stinson], a strong defensive player who loves to be on the ball."

The team also received help from Danielle Sugrue, who now plays varsity, and Courtney Kavanaugh, who plays for both the freshmen and JV team.

"Seven of my players have scored goals, which I think is amazing," said Lynch. "The girls are very versatile, too. Some are able to play more than one side and a totally different position if asked," said Lynch. "I think this will benefit Jodi [MacKenzie the varsity coach] next year. I have some solid athletes and student athletes no less."

Look for more write-ups on the WHS sub-varsity teams in the upcoming weeks.

Wildcats fight back to tie Amesbury

strong game in the net, making 11 saves, including a gem off her shoulder in the first half, and then stopping one with her legs by the left side of the net on another hard shot this one off the stick of Josephine Lannon.

Just four minutes after Amesbury took the 1-0 lead, Wilmington tied the game up. Blaisdell took the corner, passed it out to her left to Crannell and then stormed the net. Crannell put a hard low shot towards the right side of the net and Blaisdell was there to redirect it home, getting just a small piece of the shot, for a big goal and tie the game up at one.

"We dominated the first 15 minutes of the first half, and then we dominated probably the first 15 minutes of the second half," said MacKenzie. "Then what happens is we get killed for that one moment, the ball will switch and be down in our end and the girls give up (and give up a goal). Then they have to get refocused and have to comeback."

Comeback is the big word here when describing this season. Wilmington is 2-13-3 and has one game left against Triton Regional, a team the Wildcats defeated earlier this season, 1-0.

"Honestly if we played like we did on Monday - this whole season, we would have been undefeated," said MacKenzie. "We are not a bad team at all. We proved that we could play with these teams. We just had trouble scoring at times. We have one game left and right now we are 2-13-3. I know that's not an incredible record, but I do think we have taken some baby steps. The only unfortunate part is we should've beat four or five other teams within the last few weeks. We just didn't pull through."

"You know what I'm happy about? If you look at the scores from last year to this year they weren't like shut outs. At first this season they were. We were getting killed losing 5-0 and 6-0. But then we were going through games of scores like 3-2 and 2-1 and 1-0, and it shows there have been improvements."

Volleyball team's season winding down

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Wilmington High volleyball team lost a pair of games this week to drop their record to 5-13 on the season, but the Wildcats did play well in both matches. In fact, in one of the losses, the team played so well for part of the match that the match was extra painful for the Wildcats and coach Mark Staffier to take.

Last Wednesday afternoon the Wildcats hosted a Masconomet team that had beaten them 3-0 earlier in the season at Masco, but this time things started off much better for the Wildcats as they won the first two games of the match. Unfortunately, they could not close the deal and ended up losing the match in five sets by a score of 18-25, 22-25, 25-23, 25-16, 16-14.

"That was a heartbreaker," Staffier said. "I think in hindsight, we may have just figured we would get the third game, but it just did not come as easy. We had played them earlier in the year, and we did not feel like we played our best. After the first two games in this one I was very happy, but obviously it did not work out."

In the fifth and deciding game, the Wildcats held a 14-13 lead and were serving for the win, but could not come up with the point. Masco then took over and got the final two points for the victory.

"They had a very good server and she was able to get them a couple of points and that ended up being the difference," Staffier said.

The Wildcats did get some very good performances on the day, starting with junior Amanda Hollenbeck and sophomore middle hitter Katie Aioki.

"Amanda has been playing very well for us and she did in the match as well," Staffier said. "She strung together five or six points at a time for us. She has been real solid. And Katie was very good, coming up with some key blocks for us."

On Tuesday afternoon, the Wildcats fell 3-0 to a talented reading team by scores of 25-18, 25-21, and 25-17.

"We played pretty well. Reading is a tough team and we played them pretty close especially in the second game," Staffier said. "We stayed with them. We probably could have won that second game with some of the chances we had."

The Wildcats will wrap up their season at Lynnfield on Thursday afternoon, followed by the season finale at home against Burlington next Monday at 5:30.

history last November. "But we all play each other, so we'll see what happens."

The 1-0-2 week means Wilmington has continued its unbeaten streak to 13 games, losing the first game of the season to Haverhill.

The week of play started with the scoreless game against Rockport, who currently are near the bottom of the small school standings with a record of 3-7-5.

"The other day in the Rockport game we had a dozen legitimate scoring chances," said Scanlon. "We were all over them and we couldn't score. They (Rockport) didn't register a single shot taken in the second half."

Part of the offensive woes from Thursday, and for most of the game Saturday night against Billerica, was being without Jason Pereira, who sat out both games with a groin injury.

"Possession wise and scoring chances, yeah I would say we outplayed (Billerica)," said Scanlon. "I think it's been a little bit of complacency on our part. We're not getting the unlocking pass and we're not generating the offense we were. I know Jason's out of the line-up and that's part of it, but we've had a lot of different guys score this season. I thought it was a fair game for both. We had some chances (to score)."

Billerica took a 1-0 halftime lead, scoring with just two minutes to go. Captain Tyler Stoffers took a corner kick to the left of Wildcat keeper Marty Bamberg, and the ball was redirected in the air to the head of Joe Buckley, who headed the ball inside the left hand post, as the Indians took a 1-0 lead.

some offense but putting the very skilled and polished full-back Gott Saenchandi up front.

"I'm trying to get a shooter," said Scanlon. "I have all of these creators up there but no shooters. You need a shooter. Pereira is getting to some of this stuff and putting them in, especially the other day, and he's hard to deal with because he opens up some lanes for other people."

With 23 minutes to go in the game, Saenchandi did indeed generate some scoring. He took an indirect kick from about 50 yards out, and the ball went right to the 6' yard box where the Billerica keeper and a defender both leaped for it, and the ball skimmed off one of those players, and partially hitting Nick Godzyk before landing in the back of the net for the goal and more importantly it tied the game up at one.

Both teams had several scoring chances, but mostly played a very tough and physical style the rest of the way.

"That's one of the more physical teams we've played," said Scanlon. "We were playing too much in the air and that's not our strength. I thought we did that the other day too. If we put one to the floor, we would've got one."

On Monday, Saenchandi, Jon Spurr, Pereira and Andrew Owens led the way for the Wildcats past Georgetown. Liam Gately, Bobby Folk and Godzyk each had an assist, while, Bamberg made five saves in the net to record the shut out, his seventh on the season. Lance Flaherty, Cam Garrant and Eric Murray all played well, according to Scanlon.

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Rams girls soccer team takes league title

MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech girls soccer team has been dominant all season long in the CAC Large School Division, and this week they wrapped up their first ever outright league title and the first perfect record within the league in the eight year history of the program when they won two more league games to improve their overall record to 14-1-1 and 12-0 within the CAC.

The Lady Rams downed defending CAC champ Greater Lowell last Wednesday afternoon by a score of 3-0 to clinch the league title and wrapped up their perfect mark within the loop with a 5-0 white washing of PMA Methuen on Monday afternoon.

Against PMA, the score actually stood tied at 0-0 at halftime before Shawsheen took control with five second half goals to bury the visitors. Shawsheen had dominated throughout the first half, but were unable to break through with a goal.

"I don't even think PMA touched the ball in the first half," Shawsheen coach Doug Michaud said. "We must have put about 25 shots on net in the first half, but we just couldn't find the back of the net."

They certainly found it in the second half, with freshman Marissa Irwin starting the scoring at the 5:00 mark and Wilmington junior Jenn Carroll giving the Lady Rams some insurance at 15:00.

With the two goal lead, Michaud, pulled starting goalie Stef Warnick of Wilmington and moved her up to midfielder while putting JV star Jen Curtis in net for her first varsity action. The move worked in both regards, as Warnick scored the next Shawsheen goal and Curtis continued the shutout in net.

"Stef played a great game in goal, and has been great all year, but she was a midfielder for us for the past couple of years so I put her out there and she did great," Michaud said.

Curtis effort in net also gave Michaud something to think about as both the state and vocational tournaments approach.

"Jen played really well. I have been watching her and she will be a real nice addition net year or maybe even this year," Michaud said. "We have a lot of options in net. We could either play Stef, or move her out to midfield and play either Jen or Alyssa Martucci, who has also played very well in net for us."

Wilmington's Heather Masse added the Lady Rams fourth goal, while freshman Charlotte Ardini capped the scoring for Shawsheen.

Freshman Erin Plunkett added an assist for Shawsheen, and Michaud was very impressed with her overall play.

"She has a lot of speed and she created some openings for us," Michaud said. "She created a new look for us. She provides some good balance for Jenn (Carroll), because she is probably the only player on the team who can match Jenn's speed."

Against Greater Lowell last Wednesday, Shawsheen took a 2-0 halftime lead and added a third goal midway through the second half to finally put away the Gryphons and clinch the league title. Warnick went the distance in net in that on, making 10 saves to earn the shutout.

It was fitting for Shawsheen to beat rival Greater Lowell for the clincher. They have finished second to the Gryphons the past two years, and their previous league title was shared with the Gryphons.

"It was great to beat them for the league," Michaud said. "It's been a lot of tough competition with them, including in this game. Even though it was 2-0 at the half, I told our players that they could come back at any time. They always play hard."

Boys Soccer

The Shawsheen boys soccer team was unable to capture the CAC title this year, as it will once again go to perennial champ Chelsea, but a pair of ties with Chelsea over the past week can do nothing but help the Rams confidence as they head into post season play in the coming weeks.

Shawsheen played the Red Devils to a 0-0 tie on Tuesday afternoon at Shawsheen, after having played them to a 1-1 deadlock last Thursday afternoon in Chelsea.

Along with a 2-2 tie at home against Blackstone Valley on Monday, the Rams now have an 8-1-6 overall record with three games left in the regular season, before they begin play in the Division 3 North Tournament and possible the State Vocational Tournament.

The 0-0 tie on Tuesday was a good indicator that the Rams are ready for post season play.

"It was a back and forth game between two evenly matched teams," Shawsheen coach Dick Barriss said. "We hit a crossbar in the first half and they had a couple of point blank shots that Mike LaMonica made some great saves on."

The Rams battled the Red Devils all the way through the game, never giving ground to what Barriss described as a talented team on both sides of the ball.

"They will not give you too many good shots while you are on offense and they are so good back there that they then try to create an overload when they go on offense," Barriss said. "We were able to neutralize their tow guys up front. But their four guys in the middle become a big factor in the game."

Fortunately for the Rams, when Chelsea did get scoring opportunities, they had LaMonica in net as a last line of defense and he rose to the occasion.

"Mike sacrificed his body to make some great saves," Barriss said. "We needed him to step up against a good opponent and he did it."

In their previous game against Chelsea last Thursday, a makeup of a game earlier this season, the teams played to a 0-0 first half tie before each team notched a tally in the second half. Chelsea got it started with a goal six minutes into the frame before Wilmington's Calvin McMillan tied it on a corner kick at the 15:00 mark.

"That was actually the bigger game for us," Barriss said. "If we had won that game, we would have had a chance for the league when we played them today (Tuesday), but as it turned out we weren't able to get it done."

The Rams had a 2-1 lead over Blackstone in the second half on goals by Eric McLaughlin and Wilmington's Andy Maga before the visitors tied it up on a disputed goal.

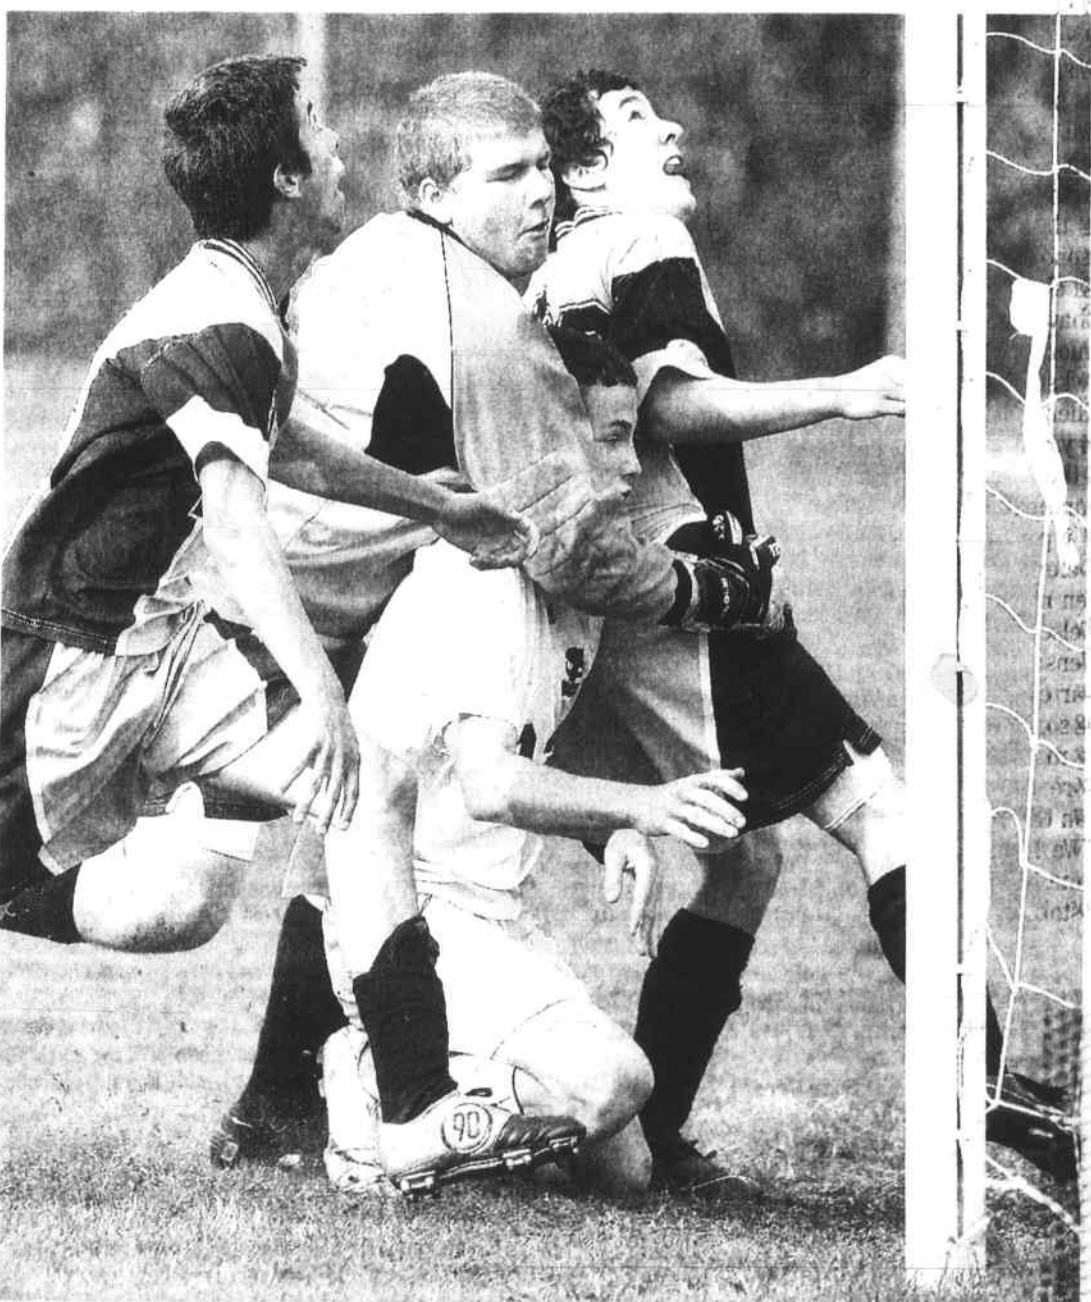

"We felt like it was offside, in fact we thought it was so far offside that it had to be called since there was no defender around him," Barriss said. "But you can't cry over spilled milk. After that goal we had two great chances to take the lead, but we couldn't score so that goal did not cost us the game."

Blackstone entered the game against the Rams with an 11-1-1 record. His team's performance in that game as well the two Chelsea games should bode well for the post season, according to Barriss.

"Those were teams that were the quality that we will face in the tournament," Barriss said. "If we are going to go far we have to be able to beat those team, but at this point at least we have shown that we can definitely compete with them."

Golf

The Shawsheen golf team had six members of their team compete in last week's Division 3 North Tournament at Hillview Country Club in North Reading and the young Rams did pretty well, finishing eighth out of the 13 teams in tournament, many of which were much larger schools than the Rams.

Shawsheen finished with a score of 329, just five points behind seventh place finisher Austin Prep. The top four scorers for the Rams were junior Brett Federickson with a 79, sophomore Dan Jacobs with an 80, senior captain Ryan Strazzere with an 82 and freshman Stephen Murphy with an 88.

"It was a good tournament," Shawsheen coach Tom Struthers said. "It would have been nice to shoot a little better, and I really thought we could, but to be honest I was just really happy we had a chance to attend for the fourth year in a row. That says something about the program."

The past three years, it was nearly a foregone conclusion that the Rams would qualify for the tournament, with a talented stable of experienced players. There were no such guarantees this season, with so many new players to the program, but this once inexperienced group got better in each match, and by the end of the season they had posted a 6-7 overall record and had secured their fourth straight league title along with a trip to the state tournament.

"The whole team did a real great job this season," Struthers said. "We wanted to finish .500 this season and we very nearly did that. We finished fourth in the voke tournament out of 21 teams and we made it to the state tournament."

"You have to be proud of the way the kids played this year and they will walk away with a positive feeling about golf and will be ready for next year," Struthers added. "Hopefully next year we will do even better."

Cross Country

The Shawsheen boys and girls cross country teams both had outstanding regular seasons this year, as both made it through the CAC schedule undefeated, with the boys finishing 8-0 on the year and the girls finishing with a perfect 9-0 mark. But both teams knew that the season would not be complete without a victory in season ending league meet last Wednesday at Essex Aggie in Danvers.

As it turned out, both teams did just what they had done all season long and responded to the pressure with impressive victories, with the boys blowing out the competition with a final score of 33, far ahead of second place finisher Greater Lowell's 55, and the girls winning in equally impressive fashion totaling 40 points to far out distance Greater Lowell's 65 in second place.

After two consecutive years finishing second to Greater Lawrence, the Shawsheen boys left no room for doubt as they placed five of the top ten runners in a field of 70.

Junior tri-captain Bjorn Hanson finished third overall, crossing the finish line in 17:30. Senior tri-captain Kevin Mahoney ran the strongest race of his high school career to finish 5th overall in a time of 18:33. Sophomore Anthony Finn ran 6th in 18:37, while Jeff Quilty and tri-captain Travis Craigie rounded out the Rams' top five in 9th and 10th places with times of 19:02 and 19:06, respectively. All of the Rams' top five were named league All Stars for their performances.

"This was a good day for the program," said coach Tim Broadrick. These runners have worked hard for the last few years to climb to the top of the league, and I am proud of them."

The Lady Rams won the league title behind strong performances from juniors Alyssa Mooney and Abby Pinard, both of Tewksbury.

Mooney backed up a perfect individual season, in which she won every regular-season race, by winning the race in a time of 21:30. Pinard finished 5th in 23:21. Both were named league All Stars based on their performances throughout the season.

Freshman Grace Brogan finished 11th overall, followed by sophomore Johanne Legrand in 14th. Junior Molly Grzelcyk of Tewksbury scored fifth for the Lady Rams by running 20th overall. Freshman Christen Aliperta also ran strong in 22nd place in the field of 75 girls.

Rams put up 30 points against Red Devils

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

BILLERICA - A two game winning streak may not seem like much, but for the Shawsheen Tech football team it just may be the start of something very big. The Rams won consecutive games for the first time this season on Saturday afternoon, downing Chelsea by a score of 30-16 in a CAC crossover battle between the Upper Division Rams and the Lower Division Red Devils.

The Rams moved over .500 for the first time since an opening week victory over Tri-County, and improved to 4-3 overall on the season, while Chelsea fell to 3-3. Shawsheen will open CAC Large play next week at Whittier.

The Rams got outstanding efforts from both of their quarterbacks, along with a second consecutive stellar defensive effort, including three second half interceptions, to earn the victory that was not nearly as close as the final score would indicate, with Chelsea scoring 16 fourth quarter points, including their final score with 31 seconds left in the game to pull closer.

Shawsheen quarterbacks, junior Kevin White of Tewksbury, and senior Shaun Miller combined to throw for 164 yards and two touchdowns on the afternoon, while junior running back Cory Foss ran for a pair of touchdowns.

Defensively, the Rams were even more dominant, holding Chelsea to 27 yards of total offense through nearly three quarters of play before allowing some big plays in the closing minutes to make the final score appear much closer than the game actually was.

"We had a great all around game," Shawsheen coach Al Costabile said. "Our defense came up with some big turnovers which made it very difficult for them to throw the ball."

Shawsheen jumped on top midway through the first quarter, marching 58 yards for the first score of the game. The key play came on a 41 yard pass from Miller to sophomore Robert Greenwood down the right sideline for a first down at the Chelsea 20 yard line. Two plays later Miller hooked up with another sophomore, Derek Bent for a 14 yard touchdown pass, hitting the wide open receiver in the middle of the end zone with 5:56 left in the first quarter.

Nick Danas added the first of his three extra points on the day for a 7-0 lead. The teams traded scoreless possessions for the next few series, with the only highlight being Chelsea picking up their first first down of the game early in the second quarter, but the Shawsheen defense then stiffened to hold them on a fourth and one from midfield.

After the stop, the Rams proceeded to go on an 11 play drive that featured three more Miller completions, but were finally stalled at the Red Devil eight yard line. Danas, however, came on and nailed a 25 yard field goal to extend the lead to 10-0 and that is how the teams would go to the half.

Their passing game has been a big part of the offense for the Rams the past two weeks, with White throwing for 145 yards last week and now this week's combined effort. The Rams have not changed their run oriented offense forever, but Costabile and his coaches have been able to adapt when necessary.

"We felt like we could exploit them with the pass," Costabile said. "We got some good throws and catches. Both quarterback played well."

Despite dominating the first half, the Rams lead was still relatively slim, but that changed quickly thanks to turnovers on three consecutive possessions by the Red Devils.

First, senior Jason Baker picked off a Nelson Molina pass on Chelsea's opening possession and returned it 30 yards to the Chelsea nine yard line. The Rams immediately took advantage of a stunned Chelsea team as Foss burst throughout the middle of the line on the next play for a 17-0 lead with 9:00 left in the third quarter.

Senior Mike Allen came up with a pick and also returned it for 30 yards on Chelsea's next possession, this time to the Red Devil 18 yard line, and once again the Rams made quick work of taking advantage of the turnover when White connected with Bent for Bent's second score of the game on perfect fade to the corner of the end zone. The extra point failed and the Rams lead stood at 23-0 with 6:30 left in the quarter.

"The interceptions really swung the game in our favor," Costabile said. "It was a close game at that point, but that put us in control."

Miller made it 3-for-3 on Chelsea's next possession, picking off Molina to give the Rams possession with 4:4 left in the third quarter. The Rams drove to the Chelsea 12 yard line, but a Danas field goal attempt sailed wide left to give the Red Devils possession.

At that point in the game, the Red Devils had totaled only 27 yards of total offense in the game, but Molina hit Daniel Martinez with a screen pass that went 45 yards on the final play of the third quarter and later in the drive Molina scored on a quarterback sneak while also running in the two point conversion to pull within 23-8.

The Rams responded with a fine drive of their own, this time primarily on the ground with Mike Allen and Tewksbury's Jason Baker doing the damage for most of the drive before Foss capped the drive with a 12 yard touchdown run for a 30-8 lead with 3:15 left in the game.

Chelsea capped the day's scoring with a 38 yard scoring pass from Molina to Joseph Rivera with 31 seconds left. Chelsea then recovered the ensuing onside kick, but the Rams defense held to close out the game.

Next Opponent

The Rams will travel to Haverhill on Saturday for a 10:30 a.m. kickoff against Whittier in their CAC League opener, and the first of four straight CAC Large matchups to close the regular season.

The 4-3 Rams will take on a 4-2 Wildcat team that is coming off a 43-16 loss to Manchester -Essex last week. Manchester also dominated the Rams by a score of 34-0 earlier this season as part of their perfect 6-0 record.

Other common opponents for the Rams and Wildcats are Chelsea and Mystic Valley, whom Whittier faced in the two weeks prior to the Manchester loss. Whittier downed Chelsea 14-0 two weeks ago, while beating Mystic Valley 37-20 the week prior to that. The Rams of course, are coming off the 30-16 rout of Chelsea, and defeated Mystic Valley in the game prior to that by a score of 32-6. Whittier other two wins came over non league rival Charlestown and CAC Large foe Greater Lawrence.

Whittier will be led on offense by the all around play of senior Bryan Trickett, who has rushed for seven touchdowns, while catching three more. Trickett has also returned an interception for a touchdown earlier this season.

Whittier's strength lies in running the football, but they have shown the ability to put the ball in the air with junior quarterback Ryan Dillon throwing for five touchdowns on the season.

Wildcats drop first game on one yard line

because we were practicing the snap with some guys," said Barry, referring to replacing place-holder Scott Bonica, who came out of the game in the second quarter after making a catch with a severe ankle injury. "We missed it. The way we were going on offense, and everything else, I figured to go for the (kick at that point of the game). If we made that, and then kick the other one (we would have won the game). We have been kicking them good in practice and this one just didn't go through (the uprights)."

The Wildcats defense -- which gave up a staggering 429 yards of offense including 249 in the air, and 21 first downs -- held Lawrence to a three-and-out after Butters' touchdown, allowing Stewart and the rest of the offense to come back on the field for one last drive starting at the Wilmington 23 with 3:45 to go in the game.

Again Wilmington moved the ball quickly, which included a huge 44-yard pass from Stewart to Mike Manganelli. Three plays later, the duo hooked up again and Manganelli made an absolutely gorgeous over the shoulder 19-yard catch, all the while getting drilled, which moved the ball to the Lawrence 8 yard line. Two plays later, Stewart rolled to his left and went in for a 6-yard touchdown run making it a 34-33 game with 40 seconds to go.

Wilmington called timeout to discuss the conversion call -- and Barry elected to go for the two points.

"Stew's been a good player for us so we just wanted to put the ball in his hands," said Barry. "They just kind of blew us (apart) up the middle. They made the play and we didn't."

It appeared as if Wilmington was making all of the plays early on. After Lawrence scored on its opening possession, the Wildcats came back scoring three straight times within an 11:03 span. Butters slipped several defenders on a nice 43-yard run for the first score, which was followed by Stewart's first touchdown, a 12-yard roll-out to his right -- coming after he intercepted a half-back option pass and returned it to the Wildcat 31. The snap was botched on the conversion kick, and the last second pass attempt was incomplete, making it 13-7.

After a three-and-out series, Wilmington got the ball back, and scored five plays later as Butters went right up the gut for a 12-yard run. Stewart's conversion rush made it 21-7 with 3:57 to go in the first half.

Lawrence then decided to push the Wildcats defense all across the field. First the Lancers put together a 9-play, 75-yard drive, which was finished by a 35-yard touchdown pass from Ramon Heredia to Michael Calzetta. Thirty-seven seconds later, after a three-and-out by the Wildcats, Lawrence was back at it, this time completing 5-of-6 pass attempts for a combined 65 yards including the 5-yard touchdown pass to Calzetta with four seconds left in the half. The conversion kick by Demetri Brown was good, and the game was tied at 21 at the halftime break.

"They are an athletic team and I give their guys a lot of credit," said Barry, about the potent Lawrence offense. "They made the plays. (Heredia) threw some nice balls, and there were times where we made some mistakes. When you play an athletic team that can score points, you can't have letdowns."

Lawrence all but dominated the third quarter. The Lancers scored two touchdowns, and totaled 135 yards of offense (excluding 33 yards worth of penalties) on 13 plays compared to Wilmington's 21 yards of offense on 7 plays. Francis Nova scored on a 50-yard touchdown run on Lawrence's first play from scrimmage in the third quarter, before Heredia made it 34-21 after scoring on a 10-yard run (the PAT kick failed), which led to Thibault's fumble recovery and Wilmington's final two touchdowns.

Barry was very pleased with his kids' work ethic and ability to come back with the late scores.

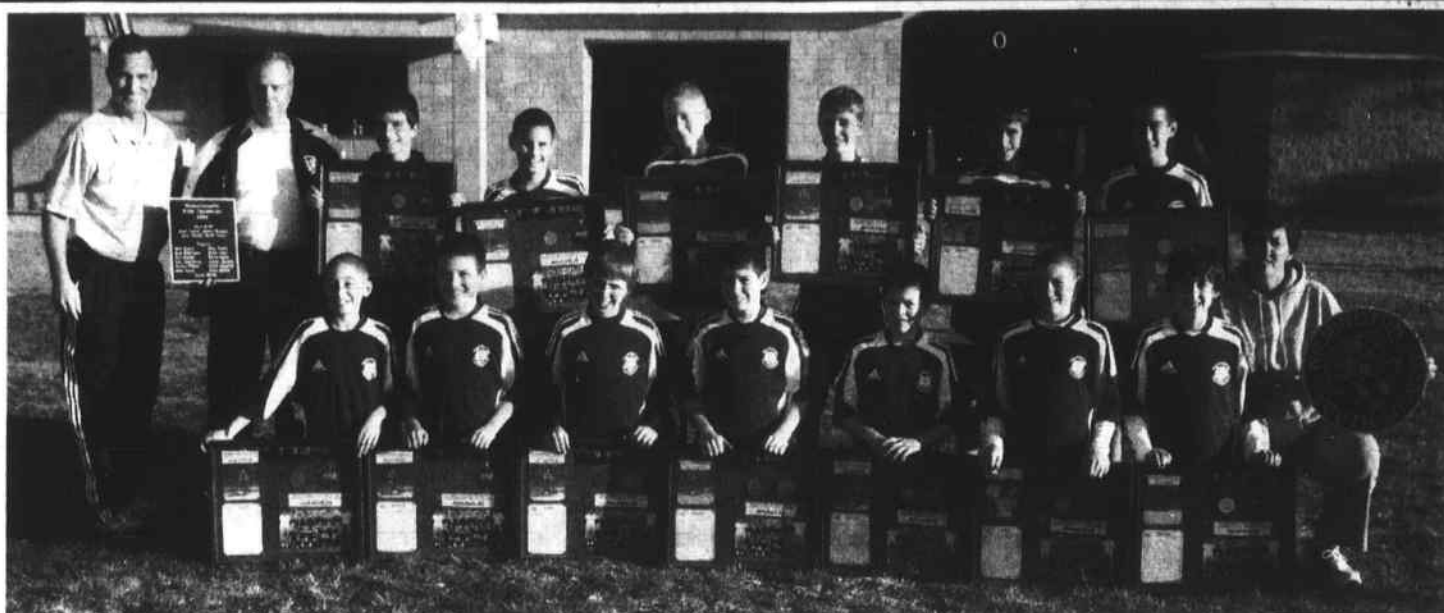

"We talk about it all week long that you can quantify the wins and losses," said Barry. "But people in the stands and people around, they don't see the heart these kids have. These kids have so much heart, and they play with so much of it. It doesn't make it any easier right now, but in the long run that's what you are looking for, tough kids who will compete. I think we made some mistakes and that starts with me as the head coach, but I have no problem with the way the kids competed tonight, and the spirit in which they played with."

Offensively, Wilmington was very impressive once again. In the end, the Wildcats totaled 353 yards, including Stewart rushing for 141 and throwing for 108, while Butters added 91 yards on the ground on 13 carries including his three scores. Manganelli was fantastic making three catches for 88 yards. As good as the offense was, the defense wasn't up to par, giving up too many big plays.

Barry was asked after the game if he was more concerned about the team's nine penalties for 80 yards, or giving up 249 yards in the air on 16-of-24 attempts.

"I think both. I would say the pass defense but they also had a lot of runs against us in the third quarter -- they ran the ball more than anything else. We just couldn't get any momentum going in that third quarter," he said.

Wilmington remains on the road with a Saturday afternoon match-up with Pentucket Regional beginning at 2:00 pm. The Sachems are currently 4-2 on the season posting wins against Greater Lowell Tech (48-0), Hamilton-Wenham (14-0), Newburyport (19-0) and Ipswich (19-0), while losing to North Reading (8-6) and Amesbury from this past week by a 24-21.

The Wilmington Under 14-boys soccer team captured the state championship title this past summer, becoming the first team to do it in this town since 1996. On Saturday, the Youth Soccer Association commended the team for its accomplishments. ## Youth Soccer honors championship team

Last Saturday started out to be a chilly day at the Shawsheen field, complete with the season's first frost over the eight soccer fields.

But as the day wore on the sun eventually came out and it turned out to be a beautiful, crisp autumn day. It was a perfect setting for two special events to take place there on that day.

First the 2007-2008 BU12-1 travel team, coached by Jim Murphy, was being recognized by Wilmington Youth Soccer Association (WYSA) for winning the Division 1 State Championship in June.

Coach Murphy led his team to a 7-1-1 spring season record to take the Middlesex Youth Soccer League's (MYSL) Division 1 bracket crown. They then marched through three tough divisional rivals to capture MYSL's Commissioner's Cup trophy.

This accomplishment got them an invitation to MA Youth Soccer's Tournament of Champions (MTOC).

At MTOC all Division 1 and 2 winners from ten youth soccer leagues around the state play in a round robin playoff format.

After some tough games against the best boys U12 teams Massachusetts has to offer, Wilmington's entry was the last one standing! It is WYSA's first state champion since 1996.

While the newly crowned state champs were being honored, WYSA was holding its 2nd annual Kindergarten Soccer Day to introduce Wilmington kindergartners to the great sport of soccer.

Over 70 children experienced a fun obstacle course, received a soccer ball and then split off across 6 different fields with current WYSA coaches and players to play soccer-related games and activities.

A fun surprise for all was the arrival of Slyde the Fox, the New England Revolution mascot, who visited each field and took many individual and group pictures. There were over 15 raffle prize winners who won items ranging from shin guards to soccer backpacks and outfits.

With all the choices available to children, WYSA reminds parents that soccer is a great choice for kids who like running around outside with friends. It provides the perfect combination of gross motor skills development in an outdoor environment combined with social interaction...which is why soccer is called The Game for ALL Kids!

Soccer remains one of the most inexpensive sports around, and WYSA has one of the largest programs in the state providing opportunities for 1,400 players each year aged Kindergarten - High School senior. WYSA also has the largest TOPS soccer program with 50+ special needs players individually coached by 50+ volunteer middle and high school students.

Any Wilmington boy or girl who is currently enrolled in kindergarten or above is eligible to play in the spring '09 season, which is a 9-week season beginning in April.

If you are interested in registering your child to play and/or are interested in volunteering to coach this spring, please visit WYSA's website: www.wilmingtonyouthsoccer.org

At Wilmington Youth Soccer, all the players are champions!

On Saturday afternoon, New England Revolution Mascot Slyde visited with the Wilmington Kindergarten soccer players during a youth soccer clinic held at the Shawsheen Elementary School.

Wilmington Youth Soccer coach Mike D'Ambrosio and his daughter Michaela have a pep talk with the kids on their team during Saturday's event.

Wilmington Youth Hockey Squirt 3 and Pee Wee A teams in action

The Wilmington Squirt 3 Wildcats played a hard-fought rematch against Wakefield this past weekend.

The first period saw some really great shots by forwards Brenden McGaffigan, Jonathon Simmons and Jocelyn Sullivan. Backing up in the defensive zone were Bret Malone, Ryan Maher, Jamie Stone and Sarah King.

Wakefield tallied first with two minutes to play, when they slipped a rebound by Wildcat netminder Christiaan Medugno. In the second period, Coach John Malone switched his lines up and Wilmington's scoring machine came to life.

Forwards Matthew Blair, David Peterson and Ellen Farrell cranked it up as Medugno buckled down in between the pipes. With 30 seconds left in the period Sarah King tied it up, unassisted.

One minute into the third, the blue and white blur took the lead when Johnathon Simmons finished off a breakaway. At 6:26 Peterson finished off a play from Jamie Stone and Sarah King, taking a two point lead. Christiaan then did a dance in goal making three straight saves.

The defense of Malone, Simmons, and McGaffigan shut down the Wakefield attack for the rest of the game.

At 1:17 Jamie Stone pulled a sweet little wrap-around to make it 4-1, with Blair and Maher getting the helpers on the play.

At the buzzer, king made a quick pass to Peterson, who sealed it at 5-1.

Pee Wee As

On Friday night at the O'Brien Arena in Woburn, the Pee Wee A teams from Wilmington and Woburn faced off for their first meeting of the Valley League season. With parity evident within the Valley League so far this season, both teams came into the game with similar records, making this game a good indicator for both teams of where they stand within their own divisions in the league.

The Wildcat's game plan was to carry the play from the opening face off with a combination of hustle, skill and smart play. As the puck was dropped to begin the first period, both teams sensed that this could be either team's game.

Throughout the first period, each team traded scoring chances only to be turned aside by solid defense or great goaltending. Just past the midpoint in the period, the newly formed trio of Cory Stillings, Mike Baker and Madison Roberts buzzed the Woburn net, as defensive pair Brian Cavanaugh and Joe Visalli kept the puck in the Woburn zone.

That hard work showed dividends on the very next shift. As the lines "changed on the fly", defenseman James Hill fed the puck up the boards to Sam D'Angelo who led the attack into the Woburn zone. Austin O'Neal battled the Woburn defense for position as the puck headed toward the Woburn net. In swooped the shifty Brandon Gentile to put the puck into the net for a 1-0 Wilmington lead.

Heading into the second period with a slim one goal lead, the Wildcat's knew they'd have to continue with their game plan in order to keep pace with Woburn. Showing some of that hustle, back checking by speedy Mark Albano thwarted an early Woburn offensive rush. Goaltender Glenn Sullivan was called upon to make a few point blank saves through the second period, as Woburn picked up the pace putting pressure on the Wilmington defense.

As the third period began, momentum shifted from team to team with each rush up and down the ice. With Wilmington holding onto a slim 1-0 lead, this was still any team's game. Penalties to each team added some excitement in the final period, as each team had opportunities on the power play only to be denied by excellent goaltending and defense.

While on a power play with two minutes left in the game,

Woburn pulled their goaltender for an extra attacker. With the screaming crowd on their feet, Wilmington's penalty killing defense stood tall, stalling Woburn's efforts to score. Once the penalty expired, the Wildcat's moved the puck into the Woburn zone facing an empty net. Adrianna Rossini kept the puck in at the blue line as Joe Castellano battled for the puck. With the Woburn defense desperately trying to swat the puck out of their zone, Joey Marino snuck in and slid the puck into the empty net with 1.5 seconds left on the clock.

With a 2-0 win in their back pocket, Wilmington's position in the White South Division of the Valley League is on an upward swing.

The summer brought a rash of human salmonella cases in the Boston area and beyond, as a result of tainted tomatoes, peppers and other produce. Now, it appears that the pet food supply is seeing a similar problem involving salmonella contamination and local pets are among those who have been sickened.

A survey of more than a dozen veterinary clinics within the Middlesex East readership area has revealed an increase in the number of suspected salmonella cases in cats and dogs, and it's believed that these illnesses may be linked to a national pet food recall that was issued on September 12, 2008.

Since the announcement of the large nationwide salmonella recall affecting Pedigree and more than a dozen other brands, pet owners are warned of another unrelated recall issued by the FDA on Monday, October 20, affecting Hartz Chicken Basted Rawhide Chews, which may be tainted with salmonella as well.

How Can I Tell if My Pet's Food Has Been Recalled?

More than a dozen dry dog food and cat food brands are affected by the nationwide recall that was issued by Mars Petcare US, makers of Pedigree and several other brands. The recalled pet food brands are as follows:

- * Pedigree
- * Ol' Roy
- * Retriever
- * Paws & Claws
- * Member's Mark
- * Natural Dog Food
- * Natural Cat Food
- * Doggy Bag
- * PMI Nutrition
- * Red Flannel
- * PetPride

Ziggie

According to Mars Petcare, dog and cat owners can look at the production lot code, located below the "Best By" date - typically situated near the UPC bar code - to determine if their pet's food has been recalled.

For Pedigree dog food, pet owners should look for "PAE" as the sixth, seventh and eighth digits of the production lot code. It will appear like this:

For all other brands listed above, pet owners should look for "17" as the first two digits of the production lot code. It will appear like this:

In the October 20 recall issued for Hartz Chicken Basted Rawhide Chips, a total of 4,850 two-pound plastic bags of the dog treats are said to be recalled as a result of salmonella contamination.

The tainted Hartz dog treats can be identified by the lot code and UPC code number, located directly beneath the bar code. The recalled pet treats will have the following codes:

- * Lot Code: JC23282
- * UPC Number: 3270096463

According to the FDA, Hartz is aggressively investigating the potential source of the salmonella contamination in the recalled dog treats.

"Although Hartz has not received any reports of animals or humans becoming ill as a result of coming into contact with this product, Hartz is taking immediate steps to remove the product from all retail stores and distribution centers," the FDA said. "Hartz is fully cooperating with the US Food and Drug Administration in this voluntary recall."

What Should I Do if My Pet's Food or Treats Have Been Recalled?

If a pet owner discovers that he/she is in possession of recalled dog treats or dog food, the following measures should be taken:

1. Immediately discontinue use of the recalled dog food, cat food or dog treats.

2. Place the dog treats and the dog treat bag inside a sealed freezer bag. For large bags of dog food or cat food, place the food and packaging inside a heavy-duty trash bag (double bagged.)

3. Wash hands with an anti-bacterial soap immediately after handling the pet food, pet treats or packages.

4. If the pet food or treats were stored inside a pet treat jar or pet food storage container, the container will need to be properly disinfected with bleach and anti-bacterial soap properly to avoid infecting pets and humans with salmonella.

5. Print out a copy of the FDA's formal pet food recall announcement from www.FDA.gov.

6. Bring the recalled pet food or dog treats and the recall notice to the store where the recalled pet food was purchased for a refund or exchange.

In addition, pet food dishes, water bowls and pet place mats should also be disinfected to prevent the possible spread of salmonella.

Notably, the receipt and original dog treat packaging are not required when returning an item due to a pet food recall.

A check of five supermarkets within the Middlesex East readership area revealed that the courtesy desk staff members were unaware of one or both recalls at two of the five stores. Therefore, it's recommended that pet owners who are returning recalled pet food or pet treats should bring in a copy of the FDA's recall notice, in the event that the store is unaware of the recall.

How Do I Know if My Dog or Cat is Sick With Salmonella?

Of the local veterinarians surveyed, all recommended an immediate examination for pets who have been eating recalled pet food or pet treats.

Notably, salmonella is among the few illnesses that can be transmitted from humans to dogs and vice versa. Therefore, ignoring a possible case of salmonella in a dog or cat can lead to illness among human family members, as well as other pets. Particularly at risk are the young, the sick, and the elderly, in humans and pets.

The diagnosis of salmonella is fairly straightforward. Testing is performed on a fecal sample, and once diagnosed, treatment can begin.

A combination of the following symptoms typically arises about 72 hours following exposure. It should be noted that while an array of symptoms can be present in salmonella sufferers, digestive upset is virtually always present to some degree.

The symptoms of salmonella in dogs and cats include:

- * Vomiting (often with blood in the vomit)
- * Diarrhea (often with blood present)
- * Fever
- * A refusal to eat
- * Gurgling and bubbling sounds in the abdomen
- * Lethargy
- * Dehydration, often severe

* Drooling and panting (often a sign of nausea and/or pain in dogs and cats)

In a minority of cases, dogs and cats can experience symptoms such as arthritis-like joint pain and stiffness, urinary tract abnormalities that can lead to straining and frequent urination, along with redness and swelling involving the eyes.

If a pet exhibits the symptoms of salmonella, it's vital that the dog or cat is brought

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"W"

"W" stars Josh Brolin as President George W. Bush. This movie is directed by Oliver Stone. The most surprising aspect of the film is how much pity Stone has for his subject. It also stars Richard Dreyfuss as Dick Cheney.

"W." humanizes Bush in ways that will baffle critics of both the president and the filmmaker.

Bush, played by Josh Brolin, is pugnacious and assertive, twitchy and unfocused, engaged and engaging. His constant eating and drinking suggest an insatiable appetite and restless nature. Overwhelmed by family expectations, he spends his youth drowning his inadequacies in Jack Daniel's and Lone Star.

"Chasing tail and driving drunk," sneers his father, played by James Cromwell. "Who do you think you are - a Kennedy?"

He is more like his mother, played by Ellen Burstyn, "loud and with a short fuse," than the father he cannot please.

He is saved from himself by a good woman, Laura, played by Elizabeth Banks; a pastor, played by Stacy Keach, who introduces him to an untapped voting bloc; and the owlish and bespectacled political strategist Karl Rove, played by Toby Jones, who sees the potential of his charisma and family connections. Soon he is slurping diet cola in the White House, plotting to march into Baghdad and finish what his father failed to, and ending cabinet meetings in prayer.

Because W's presidency is still underway, the film's portrait of the years in the White House - taken from books about the Bush presidency - feels unfinished and the film ends with a thud.

But the true climax is a stunning scene during which the invasion of Iraq is planned: a powerless Colin Powell, played by Jeffrey Wright, warns of a "forever war, everywhere"; Dick Cheney, played by Richard Dreyfuss, talks about an American empire built on Mideast oil; and Condoleezza Rice, played by Thandie Newton, who acts like a bobble-head.

"BODY OF LIES"

GRADE: ***

"Body of Lies" is an intelligent political thriller about a hunt in the Middle East for a terrorist leader, but is really about the manipulation of people like pawns in a worldwide game of RISK.

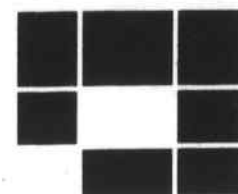

The movie stars Leonardo Di Caprio as CIA operative Roger Ferris and Russell Crowe as Ed Hoffman, his superior.

Director Ridley Scott keeps the story moving as Ferris devises a complex plan to smoke out his target, only to discover that he is simply a pawn in someone else's game.

ACTION ORIENTED

Just "send $1" (Reading)

"Once again Reading Rotary 'has stepped up to the plate' to insure our Reading Fire Department has the most up-to-date medical equipment necessary to save lives," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The Reading Fire Department has placed a new fire engine in service at the Woburn Street Fire Station. This engine has been designed to carry ALS level equipment in accordance with the State of Massachusetts Department of Public Health Office of Emergency Medical Services requirements.

"The Statewide treatment protocols require that a 12-lead defibrillator monitor be carried as part of the ALS equipment list.

"This equipment is a mandatory tool for a paramedic to use prior to administering ALS medications to a patient and to monitor that patient during the course of the treatment.

"This 12-lead defibrillator monitor costs $15,100. The 'Reading Rotary Saves Lives' fundraiser account currently has a balance of $6,000...we still need $9,100. There are approximately 22,500 Reading residents. Rotarian Bobbie Botticelli, chairperson of the fund drive, requests all Reading residents to send just $1.00 per person in your household. Bobbie asks, 'Is your life worth a $1...?'

"Please join your neighbors who have already responded to this plea. Mail your check payable to 'Reading Rotary Saves Lives' to Bobbie Botticelli at Colonial Manor Realty, 127 Franklin Street, Reading, MA 01867."

Tree age (Lynnfield)

"Since January, a small group of residents have been meeting regularly as the Tree Bylaw Committee after being brought together out of a common concern for the trees rotted in the Lynnfield community," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"The group focused on presenting a bylaw at October's Town Meeting which would provide protection for trees on private property and back up the regulation with some teeth by way of fees and fines.

"Seeking to gather support from the community, members of the Committee appeared before the Planning Board, making a strong case for their bylaw.

"There seems to be an acceleration of the destruction and mowing down of trees. That was the thing that attracted me when I moved here. There's a marked difference when you come into the community from West Peabody or Wakefield. I've seen over the last 10 years this diminish. It's disturbing," said the Committee's Jane McDuffy. "We feel it's time to step up."

"The group's intention is beyond saving trees for the sake of saving trees. The members present at the Planning Board's meeting see the forested nature of Lynnfield as an enhancement to property values.

"The Board was supportive of the bylaw, which could protect the town's natural beauty and resources.

"I think it's a wonderful idea, I'd like to see your draft," said Planning Board Chairman Richard O'Neil....

"One draft of the Committee's bylaw would create a five-member tree committee, appointed by the Board of Selectmen, that would work in conjunction with the town tree warden, currently DPW's Dennis Roy, to enforce the new bylaw...."

2008 heroine (Burlington)

"The Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women is proud to announce its 295 Community Unsung Heroines of 2008," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"These Unsung Heroines come from cities and towns across the commonwealth and each was recognized for their outstanding contributions to their organizations and communities in a ceremony at the Statehouse in Boston.

"Joan D. Proctor is the 2008 Heroine for Burlington.

"She was nominated by Burlington High School teacher Alan McRae.

"McRae noted Proctor's ongoing efforts to send packages to soldiers serving overseas.

"In his role as faculty advisor for the Community Service Club at the high school, McRae worked with students to send items overseas to the troops. In the process, he became aware of the work being done by Proctor and gave her a call.

"In talking to Joan, we decided to team up," stated McRae.

"He said that in the first year, 70 boxes were sent to troops; in the second year, the number increased to 100, and it rose to 120 in the third year.

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION:

STEPHEN POTCNER (WILMINGTON) registered his second brace in as many matches as UMass Lowell defeated Assumption College, 2-1 in overtime in a Northeast-10 Conference men's soccer clash Wednesday night at the Multi-Sport Stadium.

The victory was the fourth straight for the River Hawks, who improved to 7-2-3 overall and 6-1-2 in the NE-10 entering next Wednesday's home clash against Saint Michael's (7:00).

Assumption slipped to 5-5-3 overall and 4-3-3 in the Conference.

Potcner, who has all seven goals in his last six matches, has scored four of UMass Lowell's last five goals.

Potcner brought UMass Lowell level in the 37th minute when he possessed a loose ball, beat several defenders and uncorked a shot into the lower right corner of the goal.

The 6-foot-4 sophomore scored the winner when senior M. Matias Pietropinto (Leominster, MA) launched a corner kick, which was flicked on by senior M. Jamie Wangia (Lowell, MA) to Potcner, who settled and volleyed inside the left post.

The UMass men's soccer team closed out its four-game road swing on Friday and Sunday when the Minutemen went to St. Bonaventure and Duquesne for a pair of key Atlantic 10 showdowns.

Friday was the 17th all-time meeting with the Bonnies as the Minutemen hold a 15-2-0 advantage in the series. The two teams last met on Sept. 10, 2006 when the Minutemen shut out St. Bonaventure, 1-0, in Amherst. Zack Simmons earned the shutout and recorded four saves, while UMASS' MIKE DESANTIS (STONEHAM) scored the lone goal for both teams.

•On Saturday October 4, 2008 READING POP WARNER CHEERLEADERS competed at Stoneham High School. It was an excellent day for RPW! Two teams took first-place earning the Title Middlesex League Champions. One team received an invite to compete at the Eastern Massachusetts Pop Warner Cheerleading Competition.

The Reading B Team was the first to compete. They performed their routine pleasing the crowd and the judges. Their score was within 10 points of the first-place Stoneham team earning them an invite from the league to compete at the Eastern Massachusetts Competition in late October. The day was off to a good start!

The C Team competed next. They delighted the crowd and judges as they performed their dance and tumbling. Their movement was sharp and clean and they hit all their stunts. When the competition ended the girls of the C Team were Reading's first Middlesex League Champion of the day.

Later in the day the D Team Cheerleaders competed. This team competed against seven other strong teams. They wowed the judges, spectators and other cheerleaders. This team will compete again in the New England Cheer and Dance Competition in mid-November.

The E Team Cheerleaders are the youngest of the Reading teams. They performed an exhibition of their routine. Their cute smiles, loud voices and cheer brightened the gym. They will perform another exhibition at the New England Cheer and Dance competition in November.

The A-Team competed last and was the first ever Reading Pop Warner team to compete in the advanced category! Their amazing performance was a great ending to a very successful day for Reading. Great smiles, flashy movements, superb stunting, terrific tumbling and loud voices earned them Readings first-ever Advanced Middlesex League Title.

Three teams have earned a place in the upcoming Eastern Massachusetts Cheerleading Championship in late October. They will be competing against the winners of Merrimack Valley, Greater Boston and North Shore League Competitions all of which will be held separately this month. The teams that are advancing to the Eastern Mass Competition have to place 1st or 2nd to advance to the New England Qualifier. If the teams qualify they will then compete at the New England Regional Competition in November. The ultimate goal is to qualify for Nationals and another trip to Disney World in Florida for Reading Pop Warner. All five teams will compete in mid-November at the New England Cheer and Dance Competition at the Reggie Lewis Track Center.

•ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: Bernard Geoffrion, also of the Montreal Canadiens, scored 50 in 1960-61.

Treatment for salmonella in pets is often comprised primarily of supportive measures such as nutritional

You are what you eat....

Supercharge your immune system to fight colds and flu

Cold and flu season is just around the corner. Chilly weather drives people indoors, where they're apt to spend more time in close proximity with others and whatever sneezes and sniffles they may have. Plus, the school season is in full swing, where children bring home more than just popscicle art projects and homework; they're also bringing home a host of germs. All it takes is brief contact to a cold or flu virus to push a person under the weather.

While you can't avoid every germ, you can prepare your body to fight the cold and flu viruses and potentially lessen the duration of sickness. With a bevy of over the counter drugs promising relief, many people overlook the one thing that can work hard against colds and the flu ... vitamin C.

Vitamin C has a number of benefits for the body. It assists in the production of collagen, an important structural element in the walls of blood vessels, gums, and bones. But perhaps what vitamin C is best known for is are its antioxidant properties.

Vitamin C, among other nutritional elements find and destroy potentially harmful molecules known as free radicals. Lately there has been much research into the efficacy of vitamin C in boosting immune function. Which means it may be effective in helping to treat everything from cancer to cardiovascular disease to macular degeneration in the eyes. Studies have shown that higher levels may help the heart function properly, help to lower bad cholesterol, increase alertness, energy and mental clarity, lower blood pressure, and could even increase the average lifespan by as much as six years. It could also be your first line of defense when colds or the flu strike.

Studies vary to the efficacy of vitamin C in treating colds and flu. But in one recent study, children regularly taking vitamin C had cold symptoms for 14 percent fewer days. For adults, days with cold symptoms fell 8 percent with regular vitamin C use, say the researchers. Many people believe that taking high levels of vitamin C at the onset of symptoms can shorten colds. And the immune-boosting power of vitamin C can make a body less susceptible to falling hard to the flu virus.

Many vitamin C products on the market offer the bare minimum of the vitamin, which will do little to boost the immune system. Nutritional experts offer that the recommended daily allowance (RDA) of vitamin C (60 milligrams) is barely enough to stave off scurvy. Higher optimum levels of vitamin C are recommended to be somewhere between 4,000 to 6,000mg a day.

Super C22(TM) is a unique blend of 22 forms of vitamin C and its cousins, bioflavonoids. It has 2,500 percent the RDA. Minerals are added to the formula to help buffer the acidity found in vitamin C, which causes upset stomach resulting in avoidance of taking this much needed vitamin. Bioflavonoids have been added to complement the 22 forms of vitamin C, and increase the antioxidant power your body needs.

The product comes in a tasty powder that when stirred with water, dissolves into an effervescent citrus beverage that makes the vitamin C easily absorbed by the body. It is safe for both adults and children. The high-potency formula will help boost the immune system to pump up white blood cell counts that will be responsible for seeking out and destroying cold and flu viruses. Vitamin C is also a mood-booster (good for seasonal affective disorder) and anti-inflammatory, making it useful to take year-round to combat stress and even chronic pain.

Simple ways to get healthier

Optimal health is the goal for most people, but even the biggest of exercise buffs would likely admit there's room for improvement.

Much of that room for improvement lies in what we eat. Diet and exercise go hand in hand, so even if you spend ample time at the gym, you might not be as healthy as you think if you're not combining those workouts with a proper diet. While a diet can seem like a lifestyle overhaul, eating healthier doesn't have to involve so much sweat and sacrifice. Below are some easy dieting tips that, when combined with exercise, can help you become both healthier and happier.

* Eat your fruits and veggies. Fruits are more than just great sources of vitamins, antioxidants and fiber. They also fill up your stomach fast, lessening the hunger pangs that many find overwhelming when adjusting their diets. And because fruits and veggies are low in calories, they'll fit nicely into a diet for people who are intent on counting their calories.

* Don't skip meals. Skipping meals is counterproductive and unhealthy to boot. Missing meals makes us hungrier, which increases the likelihood we'll overeat when we finally do eat a meal. Rather than skipping meals or sticking to the traditional three hearty meals per day, eating several smaller meals can be more beneficial. This helps balance the daily caloric intake better than three spread out meals.

* Reduce portions. Even if what you eat is healthy, how much you eat might not be. Consider a dish of whole-wheat pasta. That can make for a healthy dinner, but only if you stick to the serving size, which is usually 1/2 cup of cooked pasta for a single serving. Now, consider that a restaurant serving of pasta is typically 2 cups, which equals four servings. If you stick to recommended portions of healthy foods, you'll be fine. But larger portions, even of healthy foods, are not good for you.

* Bring your lunch to work. Many people are fond of going out to lunch every day at work. Unfortunately, lunch is when many people eat packaged or processed foods, such as those sold at fast food restaurants. By simply bringing a healthy lunch to work every day, you're far more likely to lose weight and keep it off. You can still leave the office for lunch, but you'll be eating healthier and likely saving money as well.

AFGHAN PHOTOS BY PAULA LERNER

While there has been a lot of news coverage of the insurgency and ongoing hardships of war in Afghanistan, little has been seen or heard about how people in the country are rebuilding. Paula Lerner's photographic exhibit, Afghan Stories, is the exception.

On display in the Griffin Museum's Atelier Gallery at the Stoneham Theatre from October 23 to November 22, the exhibit explores another side of Afghanistan and shows a world that has been largely unknown or closed to Western observers. The exhibit runs parallel to the theatre's production of How many Miles to Basra?

Lerner, a Boston-based photojournalist, has traveled to Afghanistan multiple times since 2005 to document women's lives. Her photos and multimedia presentations have won many awards, including a Volunteer Excellence Award from the Business Council for Peace, an organization that helps women in post-conflict countries establish self-sustaining businesses.

Lerner's passion for photographing people has taken her around the world, from Afghanistan to the Amazon. Her subjects come from all walks of life and her assignments have ranged from stories on cancer patients, factory workers, and corporate executives to profiles of eminent scientists, authors, and performing artists.

Movies from S-2

Considering the wealth of characters and the complexity of the plots, counterplots and ploys thrown at the audience, the movie is actually not that difficult to follow.

It is mostly driven by Di Caprio's intense performance as a man trying to retain a spark of morality and decency in an ugly world of lies and deceptions.

Crowe is amiably amoral and slovenly as the folksy bureaucrat not bothered if innocent people are caught in the crosshairs.

"Body of Lies" keeps you off balance and on your toes, as you are constantly uncertain about who is playing whom and who is allied with whom.

Scott uses many shots offering satellite-like panoramas of the action below, allowing us to feel like we are the ones pulling the strings on these puppets.

The solid screenplay by William Monahan provides well-rounded characters. Even the people considered villains are not presented as your typical Middle Eastern fanatical terrorists.

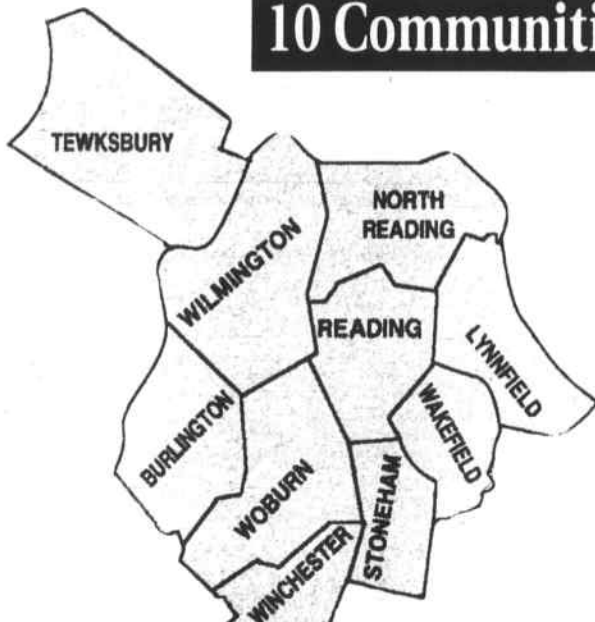

Acting honors go to Mark Strong as the head of Jordanian intelligence. His cool, suave performance nearly steals the movie from its two stars.

The movie's one misstep is a budding romance between Ferris and an Iranian nurse, which seems thrown into the script at the last minute.

"Body of Lies" does not present the problems and politics of the Mideast in simplistic black-and-white terms. This thinking person's thriller grabs your attention from the outset.

This week's sampler: The Castor

Cape Cod inspired home

Traditional Cape Cod houses inspired the creation of the Castor. Its shingle-clad exterior allows the home to fit discretely into a wooded or beach-side setting, while its simple, compact, massed shape makes it inexpensive to build, and efficient to heat. The plan is equally appropriate for construction as a year-round dwelling or a vacation retreat.

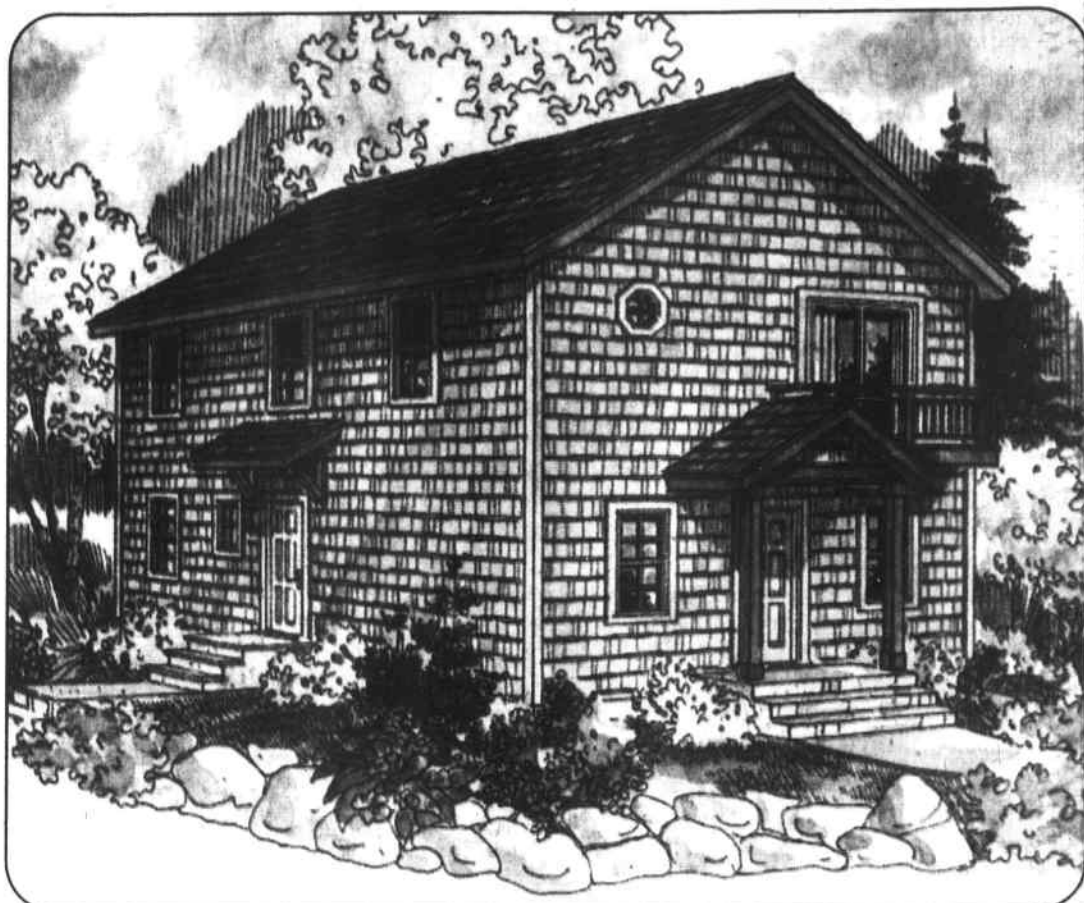

Entering, you step directly into a large open space that stretches from the front all the way to the rear. A wide coat closet fits neatly into the back of the vestibule on the left, which is next to the stairs.

Natural light beams into the living room through multipaned windows on two sides, and this area is entirely open to the dining room, which in turn flows on to the kitchen.

In the kitchen, a large work island adds to the already generous counter and cupboard space, and a roomy pantry adds even more storage capacity. Laundry appliances are nearby in a pass-through utility room that leads out onto a side stoop. A broom closet with shelves and a convenient powder room are also tucked into this hallway.

The home office, off the kitchen at the rear, is in an ideal location for handling household accounts, or even running a small, office-based business. It could also be a study, housing books and a family-shared computer.

Three bedrooms, a full bathroom and a loft are upstairs in the Castor. The loft could be outfitted as a study area or library.

The owners' suite has a charming railed balcony that faces the front, and a surprisingly large walk-in closet.

The bathroom has a double vanity, combination tub and shower, and ample towel storage.
